

U.S. to Shield 5 Pact Nations

Great Mobile Power to Thwart
Any Invasion Staged by Reds

ANKARA, Turkey (CP) — State Secretary Dulles told leaders of the five Baghdad Pact nations today the United States will support them with "mobile power of great force" against any Communist invasion.

Dulles' keynote speech at the opening of the Middle East alliance's ministerial council meeting emphasized that any potential aggressor "knows in advance that his losses from aggression would far exceed any possible gains." But, he said, "if perchance deterrence fails" the United States will contribute its mobile power to save the people of the Middle East.

Dulles is attending a pact conference for the first time since the alliance was formed in 1955.

Others attending included Britain's Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd, Pakistani Premier Feroz Khan Noon, Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes and former Iraqi premier Nuri Al Said.

AID TO CONTINUE

Dulles said the United States will continue to provide economic aid to individual members of the pact.

Lloyd told the conference in his opening statement:

"If the Russians now have a real desire to achieve a relaxation of tension, this is because by our alliances we have defended resolutely the principles and interests vital to us . . .

"However, our constant aim must always be to reduce East-West tension and to seek agreement with the Soviet Union wherever and whenever this can be achieved without surrender of our vital interests."

Commenting on Russia's call for an early summit conference of world leaders, Lloyd said the level of a conference is not as important as "concrete and sensible results."

MOSLEMS WANT MORE

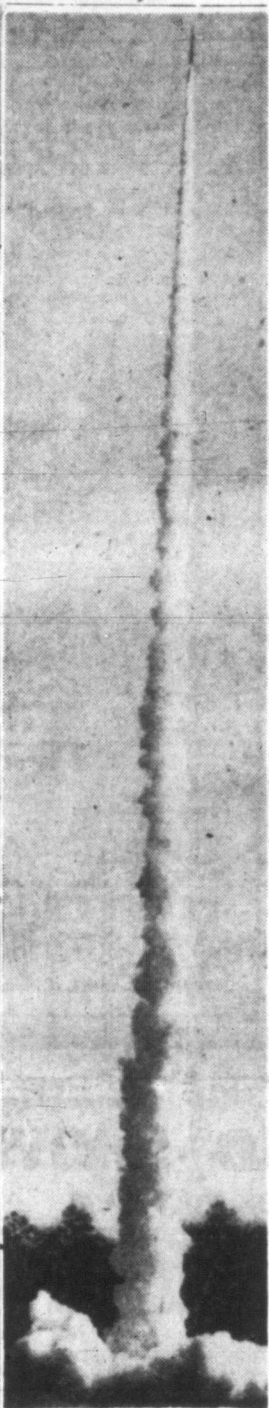

Lending weight to the economic aspects of the meeting were reports that the Moslem members—Turkey, Iran, Iraq and Pakistan—were ready to criticize the scale of Western aid programs in the Middle East as being inadequate to meet Russia's challenges.

Another internal matter was expected to be an Iraqi request for pact support for the Arab demand that Israel be pushed back to the frontiers recommended by the United Nations in 1947.

Lloyd and Dulles were reported intending to say they are not planning any new initiatives on the Palestine question but prefer instead to support any moves undertaken by the U.N.

Meanwhile, Dulles' presence at the council meeting for the first time is regarded as a symbol of American support for the pact.

The United States is a member of three pact committees but sits only as an observer on the ministerial council.

Egypt-Syria Merger Into Federation Due

CAIRO (AP)—The merger of Egypt and Syria into a single state is reported imminent. The newspaper Al Ahrām said President Nasser and Syrian President Kuwatly would announce the union today.

B.C. Mine Tax Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton said today officers of his department and the finance department are looking into the question of whether a British Columbia tax on mineral ores contravenes the British North America Act.

Senior Egyptian and Syrian leaders proclaimed the advantages of the proposed federation, and the Cairo press gave it full play. Public emphasis on the plan apparently was timed to take the edge off the opening of the Baghdad Pact conference today in Ankara, Turkey.

Al Ahrām said Cairo would be the capital, the federation's name would be "The United Arab State" and there would be one government, one parliament and one army.

A plebiscite will be held in Egypt and Syria on the proposed union, Al Ahrām said.

GROUNDING BY FRENCH

TCA's Viscounts Not Affected

MONTREAL (CP)—A Trans-Canada Air Lines spokesman said Saturday night Viscount aircraft used in Canada are of a later model than those grounded Saturday by Air France, Aer lingus and British European Airways because of suspected wing trouble.

He said TCA, which uses the later Viscount 754, would not be affected.

NEW STIMULANT SOON TO AID MENTAL CASES

NEW YORK (AP) — A brain stimulant to make normal people sharper and help pull many mentally ill back to reality was reported by a Georgia doctor Saturday.

It may be available by prescription in about three months.

The stimulant reported by Dr. Carl C. Pfeiffer, a 49-year-old researcher from Emory University, Emory, Ga. He presented his findings to a conference of the Brain Research Foundation.

Effective against schizophrenics, the stimulant also may help borderline mental or anxiety cases such as disturbed or delinquent children, he said.

Dr. Pfeiffer believes the stimulant, called dimethylaminoethanol or DMAE, exists naturally in normal brains. But some mentally ill persons may lack enough.

Fiscal Year Estimates Need Time

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today it will be a "little while yet" before the governments' estimates of expenditures for the new fiscal year are tabled in the Commons.

He said also, after a morning cabinet session, that he expects to announce some appointments Tuesday after another meeting of his colleagues. He gave no indication what jobs the appointments may cover.

The government hopes to prorogue the current session of Parliament Friday and there has been speculation that Mr. Diefenbaker may call a general election soon afterwards.

However, there have been reports that the new estimates, expected to reach a record of $5,500,000,000 or more, would be tabled early in a new session of Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker's casual remark concerning the new estimates may indicate that the minority government plans to proceed with a new session and bring in the estimates before dissolving Parliament for a new election.

Aerobees Buzz Manitoba Sky

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—The third rocket in the January series of International Geophysical Year tests was fired successfully here at four minutes after midnight, only three minutes behind schedule.

The Aerobee rocket laid a fiery trail at 4,240 feet a second to an altitude of 58 miles, firing signal grenades every few seconds of the higher part of the trajectory.

Two further rockets were scheduled to be fired today.

BOMB BLAST BEFORE TALKS

ISTANBUL (AP) — One bomb blasted a warehouse of the U.S. Embassy compound, and another shattered a private bookshop near the U.S. information centre in Ankara Sunday.

The explosions occurred 11 hours before the opening of a four-day Baghdad Pact conference.

State Secretary Dulles was in Ankara for the conference, but was not in the affected areas.

No injuries were reported.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

We thank Thee, our Father, that we have a place in Thy family, "the family of God." We are grateful that we can share in the experiences of the saints who have gone before us, walking with them in the shadows, rejoicing with them in the victories. We thank Thee more than all that we can share in the life and love of Jesus, our elder brother and our Saviour. In His name we pray. Amen.

Boy Strangled on Tree In Tragedy at Lagoon

Boys' Hangout Scene of Death

A 14-year-old Belmont Park boy, apparently playing cowboys and Indians, strangled to death Sunday at the end of a rope in an arbutus tree.

The boy, Danny Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fraser, 469 Thetis Crescent, was found at 8:30 p.m. hanging from the tree 200 yards from his home.

He had been the object of a 40-man hunt in tangled brush and rocks from dusk Sunday.

Immediate efforts to revive him were unsuccessful and he was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The boy apparently had been playing with an 18-foot length of 1/4-inch rope which was found tied to a limb, passed over other branches and cinched around his neck.

The RCMP at Colwood has talked to several boys who had been playing with the youth, but so far haven't been able to piece together exactly how the tragedy occurred.

The spot where Danny Fraser

Turkish Cypriots, U.K. Troops Clash

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — British authorities today placed a curfew on the Turkish sector of Nicosia following day-long fighting between Turkish Cypriots

The hand-to-hand fighting broke out this morning and Atatürk Square, the centre of the Turkish sector of Nicosia, was turned into a battlefield.

Three persons were reported killed in the clashes. British policemen and soldiers as well as demonstrators were injured.

The demonstrators, chanting slogans for the partition of Cyprus, clashed with British soldiers and Turkish mobile police who attempted to divert them from a march on the Greek area of the island capital city.

Showers of tear gas and baton charges failed to disperse the crowd. The slogan-chanting young Turks, many of them students, bombarded with hot ties and stones police squads barricaded in a headquarters facing Atatürk Square.

Police Save Stranded Boys

DETROIT (AP) — Two half-frozen boys were plucked from a Lake St. Clair ice floe in a pre-dawn rescue today by four off-duty policemen, groping along inch-thick ice which they intermittently plunged through.

The boys, Lawrence W. Brandt and Richard Rouillard, were rescued by Sgts. Arthur Layman and Arthur Furno and patrolmen Arthur Deblauwe and James Housey of St. Clair Shores, who continued the search after 70 others and a coast guard helicopter had given up for the night.

U.S. Railways In Desperate Plight?

NEW YORK (BUP) — Some insiders said today that the suicide of Robert R. Young means the railroad industry of North America is in a really desperate situation.

The insiders said the most revealing fact is that New York Central stock is selling now for only $13.50 a share. Young paid an average of $22 a share for it in his dramatic proxy struggle to wrest control of the Central from the slipping grip of the Vanderbilt clan.

Cigaret Main Lung Cancer Cause, Britons Bluntly Told by Medics

LONDON (Reuters) — A British Medical Association booklet told Britons bluntly Sunday:

"Cigaret smoking is a cause of lung cancer. That's that and you can't talk your way out of it."

The booklet, a supplement to the February issue of the magazine Family Doctor, was written by Dr. Harvey Graham, a

Police, Cadets Engage in Sarch

Colwood police, playing a hunch, immediately asked for aid from the naval fire station at Belmont and Canadian Services College at Royal Roads, then began dragging lagoon waters.

The college turned out about 30 cadets, two of whom finally located the boy's body.

The search was in charge of Const. Gordon Irvine and Const. William McKenzie. With cadets were Royal Roads Commandant Col. Percy Stewart Cooper, and they used one of the college cutters on the lagoon.

With lights from the college, fire station and RCMP detachment, the men began combing the bush.

Scene of the tragedy was parallel to a Belmont Park sewerage line road in an area enclosed by a 10-foot steel fence. Another fence, made of wire and broken down in places, had to be crossed before the fatal tree could be reached.

It protruded over a broken outcropping of moss-covered, slippery rocks upon which the boys climbed. Several branches could be reached from the rocks.

It was suggested by police Danny could have been playing with the rope in such a way as to become tangled in it, then slipped off the rocks.

When found, the body was nearly touching ground with knees slightly bent.

The boy was wearing a green and brown tattered windbreaker, trousers, shoes and socks. Around his shoulders and neck were draped large pieces of cloth, one black, the other white, in the manner of a neckerchief or cape.

Rope Would Have Tightened Itself

Around his neck was what appeared to be the open-topped crown of a straw hat.

On his arrival at the scene Const. Irvine applied artificial respiration. At that time, however, it was thought the boy had been dead some time.

The rope had a simple snare-type noose in the end around Danny's neck. It would have tightened itself when weight was applied.

Danny was of heavy build and weighed about 135 pounds.

A former Wolf Cub, he often played in the bush with friends. He was in grade seven at Belmont School.

The body was taken to McCall's funeral home.

Deputy coroner Dr. J. H. Moore said he could not decide whether an inquest would be necessary until he learned more details.

Mr. Fraser, a petty officer in the navy, and Mrs. Fraser have another son Gordon, 15.

271 Dead or Missing In Japanese Sinkings

TOKYO (AP) — Two hundred and seventy-one persons were reported dead or missing today in 21 Japanese shipping accidents caused by two days of storms. Topping the list was the loss of a ferryboat, with 170 persons on board, in the Inland Sea.

The Japanese coast guard reported 11 other vessels, including fishing craft, were sunk; five are missing; two capsized and two washed away. The bodies of 11 persons have been recovered in these cases; 90 others are missing. An extensive air and sea search continued.

PICTURES WITH JOHN D. TORY ELECTION POSE

OTTAWA (CP) — Government supporters in parliament are having their pictures taken with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, apparently in preparation for an election campaign.

A Progressive Conservative party source said Saturday a number of members of the Commons requested individual photos with Mr. Diefenbaker. The program later was extended to include all government supporters in the House.

The pictures will be useful on campaign posters and literature.

He suggested the reason there was still considerably less lung cancer among women than among men was that heavy smoking did not become common among women until after the Second World War.

WINNIPEG (CP)—The new tax-sharing program announced Saturday by the federal government will benefit the provinces but it is improvised legislation, the opposition leader, Lester Pearson, said Sunday night.

Kadar Quits As Premier, Remains Boss

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Premier Janos Kadar offered his resignation to Hungary's parliament today, but he will continue to run the country's Red regime as first secretary of the Communist party.

Kadar in a 90-minute speech which was applauded repeatedly proposed that his 72-year-old first deputy, Ferenc Münnich, step up to the premiership. The vote on the proposals is expected Tuesday, with approval a virtual certainty.

Kadar said he also would remain in the cabinet.

Kadar was the only leader in the Soviet bloc still holding the two key posts of premier and party first secretary.

He became premier in November, 1956, when Russian troops returned to Budapest and crushed the revolt against Soviet domination. Before that he held key posts in the brief anti-Russian government headed by Premier Imre Nagy. He also took over party leadership during the revolt.

Backers of the old regime sped in cars through the streets of Caracas and other cities Sunday night, firing machine-guns indiscriminately at civilians, troops and national guardsmen. One woman was killed and about 10 persons wounded.

Apprehension increased as the ruling junta went into emergency session Sunday night and armored cars appeared on the streets.

Authorities breathed more easily, however, on word from another ousted strongman—Juan D. Peron of Argentina—that he would leave Venezuela "as soon as possible."

Peron, who took refuge in the Dominican Embassy after last week's uprising, said he expected to leave Tuesday probably for the Dominican republic which has already provided a haven for Perez Jimenez.

Victoria district commissioner Lt.-Col. Reginald Girard proposed the appointment of three further assistant district commissioners as a major step in the decentralization plan.

Tougher Labor Policy in U.K.

By ADRIAN BALL

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative government appears today to have decided on a new and tough policy against British trade unions.

Newspaper and political pundits were saying the government tipped its hand with the rejection Sunday night by Labor Minister Ian MacLeod of a requested committee of inquiry to investigate a pay dispute within the 1,300,000-member Transport and General Workers Union.

The union asked for an inquiry into a claim for a 25 shilling-a-week ($3.50) pay raise for 33,000 London bus workers. The state-run London Transport Executive rejected the pay claim but agreed to a committee of inquiry.

MacLeod's rejection of the committee is regarded as a significant step—one that probably came from a cabinet decision.

TGWU secretary Frank Cousins said MacLeod himself had suggested the possibility of an inquiry into the wages of the whole road passenger transport industry.

He added: "This must be the first time in the history of British industrial relations when the two sides in a dispute have accepted a proposal from ministry officials aimed at seeking a solution—and find it turned down by the minister himself."

The Financial Times writes that MacLeod's move "will be regarded, in the trade union movement and outside, as the most significant indication so far of the toughness of the government's approach to wage claims."

The Liberal News Chronicle says the cabinet ordered MacLeod to kill the plan for a committee of inquiry. It adds that government and union leaders "face their most serious clash since the start of the Tory drive against pay claims."

Farm Price Measure Gets Final Passage

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—In a burst of speed, the Commons late Saturday accorded final—and unanimous—passage to the government's farm price stabilization bill.

Today it began possibly its final week of sittings in the current parliamentary session by discussing government legislation authorizing more financial assistance to the provinces in the 1958-59 fiscal year starting April 1.

Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith said revision of the hospital grants program—the provinces must match the grants to receive the federal assistance—is aimed at facilitating more hospital construction and making more jobs available.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming said he plans to bring down this week—probably Wednesday—supplementary estimates for the 1957-58 fiscal year. These would complete the government's spending program for the year ending March 31.

Just before Saturday's 6 p.m. adjournment, the farm bill was given third and final reading and sent to the Senate.

The legislation would give the agriculture minister authority to set 12-month support prices each year on any farm commodity.

Ten-Year Average

Supports would be based on the average of prices during the preceding 10 years. A minimum floor-price of 80 per cent of that base would be specified for nine products: Cattle, hogs, sheep, butter, cheese, eggs and non-Prairie wheat, oats and barley.

Agriculture Minister Douglas Harkness introduced a last-minute amendment to the preamble of the bill which said the legislation is aimed at providing farmers with a fair share of the national income.

Mr. Harkness said the act, which will replace the present Agricultural Prices Support Act enacted under the former Liberal government, will be put into operation as rapidly as possible. Boards to operate the act would first have to be established and farm price information gathered.

Mr. Harkness said he has every hope the act will be successful and that farmers will find that it will materially improve their security.

CCF members said they doubted this outcome.

They tried twice without success to write into the bill guarantees that government support prices will meet production costs.

The first CCF amendment to this effect was defeated, with the Liberals and Social Credit group siding with the CCF. The second was ruled out of order.

The government has dropped

Mr. Douglas said in an interview that "as an interim arrangement, if that's what it is, I must admit this is better than nothing."

Acting immigration minister Davie Fulton said the step was taken by an order-in-council dated last December 20.

Vanguard Rocket Still Grounded

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States Navy is busy in another effort to get its satellite-carrying Vanguard rocket off the ground in the next few days.

Informed sources disclosed Sunday night that bad weather and a series of mechanical failures in the complex Vanguard spoiled several attempts to fire it last week. The first Vanguard blew up on its launching pad here last Dec. 6.

These failures have thrown the U.S. satellite program far off schedule. A goal set by President Eisenhower would have had three or four tiny "moons" in orbit by now, with the Vanguard set to launch bigger satellites in March.

WHAT IS KING SIZE?

King Size is a Trade Name first used in the world, in 1937, by the Rothmans group to denote extra quality plus extra length. Rothmans offered this attractive, extra value cigarette at the same price as short cigarettes, because the extra tobacco put into them did not require more tax than was paid on short cigarettes.

The inventor's definition of a King Size cigarette is: "The maximum amount of tobacco in a cigarette that can be sold without extra tax imposed by government on over-weight."

In Canada, The Canadian Excise Act which determines the tax to be paid on cigarettes reads as follows: "Cigarettes weighing not more than two and one half pounds per thousand, four dollars per thousand. Rep. and new, 1952-53, c.34, c.3."

Therefore, in accordance with the inventor's definition, Canadian-made Rothmans King Size cigarettes weigh precisely 2½ lbs. per 1000. This provides the public with a cigarette which is 80 millimeters long, that is 11% longer than short cigarettes.

In the U.S.A., the tax does not increase until cigarettes weigh over 3½ lbs. per 1000. In that country, in accordance with the inventor's definition, King Size cigarettes are 85 millimeters in length.

The stylish length and the extra value of the Rothmans King Size cigarette invention rapidly became fashionable and appreciated all over the world. It has been like the mighty oak growing from the tiny acorn. And thus it has come to pass that the Rothmans trade name "King Size" has become a favourite adjective in many countries and many languages the world over to describe anything of unusually generous proportion.

Mankind's Vital Choice

NUCLEAR FUSION IN A CONTROLLED reaction is still in the laboratory stage. It will be some years yet, the experts say, before the process can be developed on an industrial basis. But the results so far show that eventual utilization of this limitless source of power is not only a possibility but a probability.

The rate of progress since the atom was first harnessed for destructive and constructive use has been so rapid that predictions regarding time are more likely to prove conservative than overly optimistic.

The first step was nuclear fission, which utilizes the energy released when the inner structure of an atom is disintegrated. The process takes place in a chain reaction under certain conditions, so that once started, the break-up of atoms continues throughout the mass of material, releasing ever greater quantities of energy. In the case of an instantaneous release, the result is an atom bomb. When the process is slowed in nuclear reactors, the power can be put to driving machinery.

A much greater source of energy lies in the phenomenon of fusion, which builds a helium atom out of two simpler hydrogen atoms, with a release of surplus energy. It is this process which produces the heat of the sun.

For fission, the complex atoms of uranium are required, and there is a comparatively limited supply of this substance on the earth. For fusion, a form of heavier-than-normal hydrogen atom is needed, and this is available in astronomical quantities in sea water.

The magnitude of the latest scientific achievement is thus evident. The fusion principle has been employed in the so-called hydrogen bomb with spectacular results. The current efforts are directed to controlling the reaction so that it can be put to work for man.

In this endeavour, British scientists have led the world. Their preliminary success, now shared with American laboratories, has been described as a greater scientific accomplishment than creation of the Soviet earth satellites. Both will prove revolutionary in the future life of mankind.

It is difficult to grasp the full significance of cheap and universal power—power that is independent of coal deposits, waterfalls, oil or gas. Many areas of the globe which today are wasteland await only the advent of low-cost power to become great assets to man. Backward countries, still depending on manpower, will be enabled to achieve a production of agricultural and industrial goods which will change the economic patterns of the world. A new era of plenty may well be dawning for the inhabitants of the globe.

But man's mastery of atomic forces must be matched by mastery of himself if he is to reap the benefit of his scientific abilities. The various nations, ideologies and races must learn to share the plenty that the earth can provide if they are not to lose it all in battling for more. We and our descendants face a test that could launch mankind on an almost unimaginable era of glory—or reduce it to charred chaos and death.

An Obvious Decision

REGARDLESS OF THE HOT accusations which mention of fluoridation brings from opponents, the cold facts cannot be denied.

The city of Brantford, Ontario, has been one of this continent's testing grounds for fluoridation of the public water supply. Twelve years ago a small amount of the salt was added to the daily flow of water. Careful tests have been made ever since and the long-term results are now becoming known.

Dr. Harry Brown, a dental health consultant for the federal department of national health and welfare, has been comparing the teeth of children in Brantford, Stratford and Sarnia for the past 10 years. He reports—and his findings have been paralleled by other experts—that the rate of tooth decay in Brantford has decreased by 66 per cent in the past decade.

Dental health in Brantford is now equal to that in Stratford, which has had fluoridated water for the last 40 years. But in Sarnia, which does not treat its water, the rate of tooth decay is one of the highest in Canada, Dr. Brown reports.

It is such facts as these, verified by responsible dental, medical and official experts, which have won for fluoridation the full support of the American Medical Association, the American Dental Association, and their respective Canadian counterparts.

The facts have led authoritative agencies such as the United Nations World Health Organization to publicly endorse fluoridation. The facts lead prominent health officials such as Dr. Gordon Bates, founder and director-general of the Health League of Canada, to make such statements as his recent declaration that "in my opinion fluoridation is the greatest step in preventive medicine in the past 20 years."

Such organizations and such men cannot be dismissed as not knowing what they are talking about. They cannot be charged as stooges for big aluminum interests, or dupes of some sinister Moscow plot to poison us. To believe such nonsensical accusations is to turn our backs on the best information and knowledge that science can provide today.

Sooner or later the people of Greater Victoria will be asked to take a stand on this question. Will they be advised by the best informed medical men, or will they take the word of a handful of discredited ex-medical practitioners, health food salesmen, and confirmed anti-everything addicts?

More than 33 million people on this continent now have fluoridated water. Their children have much better teeth. Will we join them?

Trouble on Taiwan

REPORTS FROM FORMOSA bring news of dissension in the Kuomintang.

Six impeachments have been brought against Premier O. K. Yui by the Control Yuan, one of five branches of the Chinese Nationalist Government. Though they are not expected to send the premier from his post, they are serious.

The Control Council charges the official with concealing records of the Central Bank of China, of refusing to answer questions about stopping waste, of failing to scale down, as directed, the pay level of the Council for United States Aid, which distributes American assistance, and of certain other irregularities.

Plot and Counterplot

AS WAS TO BE EXPECTED, the anti-aircraft guns that could shoot down any ordinary plane with astonishing accuracy were foiled in time by the development of aircraft which could fly too high and too fast for them. But, as was equally to be expected, these aircraft were in turn matched by the "homing" missile which at incredible speed is automatically directed toward its target.

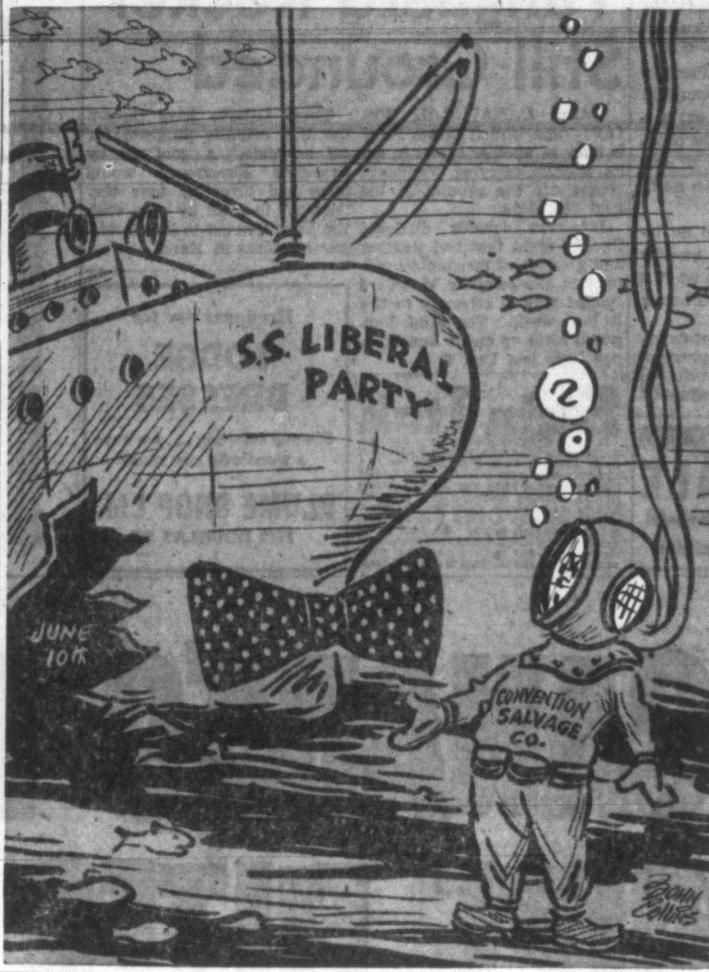

Now the latest stage has been made public. The U.S. has developed a bomber of supersonic speed which throws out a protective electronic shield designed to disrupt the missile's "homing" system.

It now remains, of course, for someone to invent a device which disrupts the disrupter—and there need be little doubt that this eventually will happen.

This is a process that has been going on for a long time—since the first caveman dodged behind a tree to avoid a thrown rock, since the shield was invented to parry a spear or sword thrust, since foxholes were developed to provide shelter from shrapnel or machinegun fire.

We can be sure that it will go on until some ultimate weapon or its antidote concludes the progression—if man should live so long.

FACTS AND ARTEFACTS

By B. A. TOBIN

How Will We Look to Them?

THE ordinary, non-expert, out-of-curiosity sort of reader of history, who finds in his book a wealth of detail on the lives of early nations and civilizations now gone, is apt to forget how that information has come to him. He assumes that, since it is represented to him in writing, it no doubt has come down to our era in that form. He may feel that writing a history of the dead past is merely a matter of getting together all the books those early peoples left us and compiling a composite account.

It isn't, of course, that easy. While a few parchments, wall inscriptions and tablets of various kinds have fortunately been preserved, much of our knowledge of the ancient days of mankind is the product of painful detective work, learned assumptions, informed guesses and logical deduction. Seldom, I imagine, have archaeologists stumbled on a find of written description that brought the past into instant focus and presented a clear picture of the lives of the people in those days.

Valuable Evidence

Much more likely are they to discover a fragment of pottery, a woman's bracelet, a clay tablet listing a citizen's debt, or the tip of a spear. From such objects is built up a more or less complete understanding of our predecessors. The information is more in the nature of theory than of fact, to be proved by later finds, amended, perhaps contradicted, or verified.

Gradually a composite view emerges which comes to be our accepted belief. Occasionally a major find—an Egyptian tomb, a complete Pompeii, a many-layered Chinese midden—opens many doors to the past. But the search is endless, and the lure is always there. Actually, of course, the problem of the archaeologist in constructing a full picture of the ancients is not much different from that which would face an interplanetary visitor were he to arrive on earth while we were out to lunch.

Unless he went to a library or reading room, he would encounter few written descriptions of the mechanics of our lives. He could only enter a home, for instance, as the Egyptologist enters a Nile Valley tomb, and construct from the objects exposed to view a theory as to what the owners were like.

From his examination of the utensils, the machines, the luxuries, the personal adornment with which we surround ourselves, he would fashion as best he could a concept of what life was like for earth's inhabitants.

Some of his guesses inevitably would be wrong, some of his deductions in error, his conclusions exaggerated. But by and large he would get a close approximation to 20th century man.

The digger into antiquity works in the same way, except that he has much less evidence to go on. And since there is so little, a false clue will have much more influence than if it took its place in a large assemblage of facts.

For instance, if the Martian visitor examined only one house in the city, and that in a state of bad repair with most of its furnishings removed, he might gain an idea of us that was entirely erroneous.

False Conclusion

He might choose the home of a Communist fellow traveler, read his diary, look through his letters, view the portraits on the wall and conclude that all of Canada was Communist.

We may be equally as far off the mark in some of our beliefs about the ancients.

The midden digger of the far future, indeed, will be pardoned if he comes up out of his excavation with a dazed look in his eyes and a hopeless shrug of his shoulders. For he is likely to find such a mixed grill awaiting his anthropological appetite that he will suffer immediate indigestion.

Imagine the searcher of 2,000 years from now digging into the site of New York, for instance. If the city had been preserved as Pompeii has been, what a muddle it would prove.

If the searcher's shaft went down in the vicinity of the Metropolitan Museum, for example, the scientists of the day might be excused for confusing our civilization with that of the Etruscans, the later Romans or the medieval Europeans, depending on which room of the museum was penetrated.

Into Confusion

Or if the shaft was driven down into the Times Square area, what a maddening hodge-podge of tunnels, pipes, wires, conduits, sewers and other under-cover works would be laid bare. The diggers might be excused for thinking the 20th century New Yorker to have been a subterranean troglodyte of some sort, whose life was spent in a maze of tubes and cables whose purpose could only be guessed at.

Imagine the controversy that would arise if one party of scientists burst into a metropolitan telephone exchange and another entered a Fifth Avenue bar. How would they reconcile their pictures of the man of today, much less the man about town?

We are storing up some pretty puzzles for the investigators of the future, alongside which the problems of ancient Egypt, Crete or Sumeria are as nothing. Let us think with pity of those who will find such evidence—and perhaps of us who bequeath it.

Deserted Wives

I am quite interested in Miss Dinah Kerr's column "The Forgotten Few."

I am a deserted wife and every other deserted wife has my heartfelt sympathy. I definitely think it is time something was done about it. It would be a good subject to bring up in the House this session.

Deserted wives should not have to come on social assistance at all. Every man who deserts his wife, because he doesn't want the responsibility, or fancies another woman, should be made an example of and be forced to pay. A court order in Canada doesn't hold water and it is time the laws should be changed.

Sure if you have money, you can bring action for a "court order" but how long does it last? The next month they step out of the province, and nothing is done about it, unless you try to trace them at your own expense. This is what happened to me and it has taken almost three years to trace and settle things. Arrears mounted up to over $2,000 and now I cannot collect.

I was left with a four months old baby, not a relative in the country, and not even a cup to drink out of. I am still struggling to get a home or should I say a few bits of furniture together for myself and son, and still cannot afford a TV set. It is just fortunate I have a job and the health to keep it, working all day and coming home. Working all one's life isn't fun.

For the protection of other wives and easing the "social assistance" service I strongly advise whom it concerns to do something about it. I am convinced if the authorities made these cowards pay or else, without the expense to the wife, the number of cases would be greatly reduced.

More Care Needed?

I was interested and puzzled reading Dinah Kerr's article in your esteemed paper of January 23.

Miss Kerr's clever pen gave a graphic account of the struggle a lady of 75 has to subsist on a very small income.

Please do not misunderstand me: I do sincerely deplore the hard fact that this woman has to exist on such a pittance. However, my real interest is in quite a different direction.

If Miss Kerr has the true facts, and I assume she has, this lady was 68 years of age when she emigrated, presumably from England, as the article states England was her home country. She is in receipt of a pension of $13 a month from England.

Did the immigration authorities actually permit a person 68 years of age and in receipt of only $13 a month to enter our country with no one of financial responsibility to sponsor her? I note she was a nurse. Were the immigration authorities fondly thinking she would be able to support herself by nursing at 68 years of age? Did our immigration authorities make a mistake?

Again I deplore this sad case, but surely we Canadians should not be expected to extend our financial assistance to people who decide to emigrate so late, and have made no contribution towards such relief. The $13 pension would go considerably further in England, and there she would have been entitled to further assistance.

Have we not enough of our own aged Canadians who need assistance, and have contributed their own fair share of taxation to provide such assistance, without accepting these cases from other countries?

I agree wholeheartedly that this woman needs a little more money, and I sincerely trust it will be provided, but shouldn't we just be a little more careful that such cases are not admitted as immigrants?

Moonlighting Origin

As moonlighting takes the spotlight today, was it not the Dominion government of 1914 that suggested that women take their place in industry, to relieve single men for war purposes? And did not the great majority of trade union leaders at that time give this suggestion their blessing; evidently not being able to visualize the complications that would arise in this competitive system?

Are not both men and women human beings and both entitled to a living from society? Then what is the difference, whether both work or whether the man engages himself in a sideline while the wife is detained at home for family reasons? Is not this agitation against moonlighting a denial of "the right to work," which is a cardinal principle of the present system?

This competition for jobs within the union must have been a terrible shock to the leaders who find themselves without work, when they allowed their emotions to run away with their better judgement. It is well known that we have very few trade unionists, but an awful lot of card-packers who never attend a meeting. If these latter were to organize and attend en masse to demand an investigation into all moonlighting for years past, they could watch the faces of those who now shout, "scab," turning crimson.

Unemployment is always with us in varying degrees under capitalism, hence the question that arises above all others today is not the question of moonlighting, but the abolition of the wages system, in order to organize production for the benefit of the whole of society.

FROM PARIS

Shall We Snub Khrushchev?

BEHIND the moon-struck public agitation about negotiating with the Soviets, there lurks a persistent and quite serious question. Is this one of the last-chance moments, when history will take a brisk new turning if a chance is not briskly seized?

All informed Western analysts, including the British and Western European political leaders who pretend to love the idea, are privately convinced that there is no chance to achieve anything by foreign ministers' conferences, disarmament commissions, summit meetings, and the like. As has been suggested in this space already, the Soviet drive for this kind of East-West negotiations in the debating society style, is solely a drive to make trouble between the Western allies.

The serious Western European and British analysts of Soviet behavior are also pretty well agreed upon another point, however. On repeated occasions, culminating in a dramatic New Year's toast at the Kremlin reception, Nikita Khrushchev himself has indicated that he wants, talks-in-a-corner between the Soviets and Americans. These invitations offer the real chance, if there is any.

They preface no debating society. They are invitations to the kind of talks the Soviets invariably seek when they want to get down to business.

The most highly qualified Western analysts are therefore agreed that the Soviets probably really do want to get down to business with the United States at this time—although there is wide diversity of view about the possible subjects they wish to get down to business about.

Yet the Khrushchev invitations have so far met with nothing better than a chilly snub, unless appearances are most misleading.

Maybe some form of American response to Khrushchev has been very secretly agreed upon at the very highest level, between President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Macmillan and French Premier Gaillard. But this seems highly unlikely.

Meanwhile, unless a great many normally-truthful people in key positions are now lying, the right response to the Khrushchev invitations has not even been seriously discussed between the American state department and the British and French foreign offices.

It would be insanely dangerous for the Americans to respond to Khrushchev without quietly keeping the other major Western allies in the picture, as a minimum precaution. Thus one must deduce that Khrushchev's invitations have been virtually ignored, despite their extreme importance.

There are many short-term practical reasons for snubbing Khrushchev in this manner.

For one thing, the other Western allies do not trust John Foster Dulles to act as the West's sole spokesman in talks with the Soviets; and even the Secretary of State appears to know that he is crippled by this distrust.

For another thing, although sentiment for an exclusive dialogue between the Soviet and American giants is growing among the specialists in the British and French foreign offices, such a dialogue would surely cause an explosion of wounded national vanities.

All the same, it is also necessary to consider the highly practical consequences that may flow from snubbing Nikita Khrushchev at this particular juncture in the world's affairs.

On the one hand, the chance that he has offered is not something that we can afford to reject from sheer immobility.

Interesting Test

For instance, the French, British, and American embassies in Moscow are now unanimous that the Soviets would really like to find some way to end the arms race, if only for economic reasons. It would at least be interesting to test the truth of this opinion.

On the other hand, Khrushchev is a singularly human statesman, with a high glow of self confidence, success, and even arrogance. Snubbing a man of this kind in this kind of mood is extremely likely to produce explosive results.

One can imagine Khrushchev saying, more than a little huffily, "Well, I wanted to talk serious business with the Americans, but it seems they don't want to talk business with me."

"So I guess there's nothing left to do but show them."

That is why there is much expert apprehension about the end of the present strange period of negotiating about negotiations. One very ugly possibility is a series of new Soviet moves in the Middle East, perhaps buttressed by the implied threat to use the Red Army's powerful force of airborne troops. Increased pressure on Berlin is another possibility. There are many more possibilities of the same sort.

Forward Moves

These Soviet forward moves are likely to be considerably delayed, if only because the present period of international gas attacks seems likely to continue for a while. But such forward moves are grimly real possibilities all the same.

And the apparent decision to snub Nikita Khrushchev is all the more questionable, because the Western allies have not even begun to try to agree among themselves about the basic and critical problem. This is the problem of meeting new and dangerous Soviet local action. In the new era of immensely increased Soviet nuclear striking power. (Copyr. 1958 N.Y. Herald Tribune Inc.)

Marion

AFTER the moving van had gone, and the rest of the family had left in the truck, Marion stayed on alone for perhaps an hour. "I want to, dear," she told her husband. "I'll make better time in the car than you will following the van. This way, I'll be able to go over everything carefully, and see that nothing's been left behind. Besides, I'd like a little quiet time to myself after all this rush and bustle."

And the house was quiet. Too quiet, yet strangely loud with echoes now that carpets and pictures and curtains were gone, and all the rooms quite bare of furniture.

Somewhat it wasn't like the familiar house at all. And yet the shell of the house was the same.

The worn lintel between the kitchen and the living room was there. And on the door jamb there was still the little knick that Bobby had made with his first penknife. For all the years of waxing and rubbing hadn't really filled the groove or hidden it.

Nearly 15 years they'd lived there, she thought, and wondered how long it would be before the other house really felt like home.

"That's the trouble with rooted types like me," she told herself. "Once you put down roots, and put them deep, it hurts so horribly to pull them up again."

She didn't want to leave the sunroom. That she knew. For the sunroom belonged especially to the days when the children were very young. There'd been the stage when she'd pushed the pram into the sunroom to let Baby sleep there after his morning's bath. Then there'd been a stage of babies crawling in knitted leggings because it was fresh and lively there when the winter windows were taken out. Toddlers had played there too, toddlers who screamed with fury sometimes because they wanted to be let out, and had learned enough to know that the door at the end opened on to the exciting garden.

Overflow visitors had slept there occasionally. And often, in the early days, Marion had thrown herself down on the sunroom couch to read a little in the hurried snatches that are all a busy young mother has for reading. Poetry it had been mostly. It calmed her spirit, she used to tell her husband, who was apt to shake his head because he simply didn't understand the ways of women, and had never heard of nerves!

"I don't mind leaving some things," Marion said aloud as she wandered through the empty house. "For there are some things about this house that I never liked."

Mentally, she listed the good things—the walnut by the front verandah, the honeysuckle by the steps, the vine that made a pleasant summer shade across the little bedroom window.

She was sure she'd miss a winter's sunrise view, and seeing the colors reflected in the field when it was flooded. It would be strange, too, not to see Arbutus Hill any more.

After the house, Marion wandered once around the garden and wished she'd taken some of her favorite treasures. But taking them hadn't seemed fair after they'd sold the place and signed the papers.

"Too honest," she murmured. "Too honest to be a real gardener. Real gardeners are the most dishonest bunch I know."

With that, she furtively took a shovel from the car, and dug up most of the aconites as well as several other little pets!

ARTHUR COX

Parley Honors 50-Year Worker For Liberals

By STAFF REPORTER

VANCOUVER — Victorian Arthur Cox was honored here Saturday by the B.C. Liberal Association for 50 years of work with the party.

Hon. R. W. Mayhew, who presented him with an inscribed silver cigarette case, said Mr. Cox had "served longer, worked harder, accomplished more and said less than anyone in this room" during his career.

"Every year with the Liberal party has been worthwhile," Mr. Cox, Vancouver Island area vice-president, told delegates to the association's first annual convention. "I'm quite prepared to carry on and impart to the young people what knowledge I have."

Liberals Jeer Party-Bolting Young Lawyer

(Special to the Times)

VANCOUVER — A 30-year-old law graduate was jeered by 200 delegates at the B.C. Liberal Association convention Saturday when he shouted his resignation from the party.

Norman Dent, of Vancouver, interrupted debate by declaring he would support the Conservative party.

He rushed out of the convention hall immediately. Outside, he told reporters that the party was "undemocratic" and said delegates to the convention were chosen in secret. A member of the party for nine years, he said he was not a delegate.

Liberal party spokesmen said he was a "frustrated young fellow" who had misjudged illusions about becoming B.C. Liberal leader.

B.C. Liberals Reject Proposal For Utility Public Ownership

Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — A proposed shift to the left was beaten down by the B.C. Liberal Association convention Saturday when it threw out a resolution urging public ownership of private utilities.

Former fisheries minister James Sinclair and Victoria MLA George Gregory led the fight against the Young Liberal resolution in a full-scale debate demanded by Mr. Sinclair.

It was defeated in a secret vote 134 to 29.

Mr. Sinclair attacked the resolution—aimed at public ownership of B.C. Electric Co. and B.C. Telephone Co.—as "the very centre of Marxist dogma" which during the depression had led to formation of the CCF.

Although the Liberal party was not tied to a "dog-eat-dog" type of private enterprise, it recognized that society thrived only in those places "without the dead hand of a civil service bureaucracy" over them.

LAST RESORTS

Crown corporations such as TCA, CNR and Polymer Corporation were established only as last resorts, he said. The resolution would undermine the Liberal philosophy of a mixed economy which saw private and public ownership working side by side.

Mr. Gregory said B.C. would "not be as great as it is" if it had waited for the government to develop telephone and power systems. If expropriation of successful "risk investment" was carried out, then there would be also a moral obligation for the government to take over those companies that went bankrupt.

"As a Liberal, I could not sit in the legislature with my conscience if the party should adopt this resolution as part of its platform," he said.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Handbook for New Parents

LONDON — I've just been reading a best-seller and I find it fascinating. I'll admit it's a best-seller in a limited field, of no interest to those not directly interested in babies, but in England mothers (and their husbands, who cannot help being brought into this thing) swear by it as the best book for those coping with the newly born.

It's called The Care of Young Babies and it's by a London doctor called John Gibbins, who should think seriously about writing in the general field because he has the prime attribute of all good writers—simplicity.

It is a small book, less than 200 pages, and looks a puny little thing beside the expensive printed, profusely illustrated tomes I bought for my wife in Canada when she produced our two Canadian babies. Yet in this little book it's all there, everything you want to know.

What Gibbins has left out are the things a mother doesn't want to know. In his preface the doctor echoes the feelings she had about the North American books she had for young Mac and Robin—they scared the wits out of her, they were so medically gruesome.

"Most baby-rearing books," says Gibbins, "are so full of descriptions of dread diseases to which the flesh is heir that a young mother may be forgiven for feeling that the rearing of a young child is a dangerous and difficult task. Few stress the fact that bringing up a baby is, or should be, a grand job, a pleasure to both father and mother."

So throughout his book he stresses the joy to be got out of it and deals only with minor ailments.

This reasoning is sound because if there is anything seriously wrong with the baby a doctor will be called in, you won't treat it from a book. Reading gory details of possible baby illnesses merely gets the mother in a fine old state of worry.

Whatever you look up in the Gibbins' book, from Clothes ("Don't start by buying a lot of things for the baby, for you will probably get plenty of presents from friends and relations") to Circumcision ("Arguments given in favor of circumcision are not in the least convincing"), you will find him talking in a chatty, down-to-earth way, with the accent on the way nature goes about things not on newfangled theories.

I'd like to have had space for fuller quotes, on such things as fears of touching the fontanelle ("an old wives' tale") and lifting a baby from sleep ("give him a chance to stretch and yawn like all young animals while his brain gets into working order") but the best thing I can do is to suggest to any new father to get this English best-seller as a present for his wife.

Hairdressers to Parade Models Tonight at Sir James Douglas

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks presented a B.C. Hairdressers' Association trophy to Doris Mathison Sunday for the best entry in a Greater Victoria hair-dressing contest at the Empress Hotel.

Second prize went to Dezzo Hohnal and third to Doris Eley.

More than 126 local hairdressers attended the demonstration and forum, and 16 entered the contest.

All competitors will parade their models at a hair style show tonight at 8 in Sir James Douglas School auditorium. Vancouver stylists also will prepare two models for presentation. Afterwards the public will be invited to submit written questions on hair problems to a panel of experts.

Proceeds from the show will be donated to the Greater Victoria Schools Orchestra. Interest in the Sunday demonstration was so high that a styling council, similar to one in Vancouver, will be established here, G. R. Matthews, general manager of the Hairdressers' Association of B.C., said.

Membership in the council will be based on skill and a desire to share hair-dressing techniques, he said. In addition members must be willing to stage free hair-dressing demonstrations for institutions raising money for charity.

Sunday's 16 competitors will form the nucleus of the council, Mr. Matthews said.

Camels Better Than New Wives

COPENHAGEN (UP)—A Danish radio amateur who got involved in a long-distance friendship with a Saudi Arabian prince has asked the prince to send him two camels—because he thinks they would be less trouble than the two additional wives the prince offered him.

The afternoon newspaper "B.T." reported today that the "ham"—who refused to allow his name to be used lest he have to explain the whole thing to his wife—had been holding long talks with Saudi Arabian Prince Talal.

The amateur told the paper that in the course of getting acquainted with the Saudi radio enthusiast, he remarked that the Danes generally make do with a single spouse.

Stagehands Protest CBC Lockout of 115

MONTREAL (CP)—Shop stewards representing production employees in all departments of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in Montreal were to meet today to decide whether to support 115 CBC stagehands who claim they have been illegally locked out.

The CBC Saturday and Sunday dismissed 55 stagehands who it says "refused to discharge part of the work assigned to them."

Representative Yvon Danseur of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees (IATSE) says all members of the stagehands department consider themselves dismissed. He says he sent a crew to work Saturday night and it was turned back at the door.

"Many others were refused entrance too," he said. "Commissionaires have received instructions from the CBC not to let any stage hands in. That's the reason why we claim this is an illegal lockout."

The CBC denied that it refused admission to any employees who wanted to go to work.

Venturi Greedy Fellow

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UP) — Ken Venturi, heir-apparent to the golfing crown worn by Sam Snead, Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson, said today his ambition is to "win 'em all."

The slender, 26-year-old San Francisco golfer, easy winner of the $15,000 Thunderbird Invitational here Sunday, moves tomorrow to Phoenix, Ariz., to compete there against the champions of all the tournaments this year: Billy Casper of the Bing Crosby; Frank Stranahan of the Los Angeles Open, and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of the Tijuana Open.

Kenny was 15 strokes under par in winning here with a 72-hole score of 269 and gave indication that he has reached the peak of his game that took him to championships in the Milwaukee and St. Paul Opens last year just after he became a pro.

BURKE RALLIED

Venturi first gained national fame while still an amateur when he led the field in the 1956 Masters by four strokes going into the final round. Then he shot a bad round and Jackie Burke, trailing by eight strokes, made a run at him and won by a single stroke.

Sunday the same thing was in progress here for a while. Burke started the day nine strokes behind. After 14 holes, Jackie had cut the margin three strokes, but he cooled off, and Ken recovered to win easily. Victory was worth $1,500 in cash, plus a new car. Venturi had rounds of 70-63-66-70—269.

Tied for second, each collecting $875, were defending champion Jimmy Demaret and Gene Littler. They had 72-hole scores of 273. Demaret shooting a final round of 69, Littler 70.

Tied at 274 were Burke, Stan Leonard of Vancouver, and Don Fairfield, each collecting $566.66.

Marlene Blew Her Chances On 36th Hole

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UP)—Eight years of striving finally paid off in victory in the Doherty women's amateur golf tournament for May Ann Downey of Baltimore.

Miss Downey captured the crown Sunday with a one-up victory on the 37th hole over Marlene Stewart Streib, a former holder of the U.S. Canadian and British women's amateur titles.

To do it, Miss Downey twice had to rally from behind. On the 36th hole, victory was only 18 inches away from the cup for Mrs. Streib but she missed the putt.

On the extra hole, Miss Downey captured the title with an eight-foot putt for a birdie four after Mrs. Streib had missed a 12-foot shot by inches.

Send Boston Bruins into each game with only five minutes to play and chances are they'd be leading the National Hockey League today.

Especially if Jerry Toppazzini and Don McKenney were playing the way they have in recent games.

Toppazzini and McKenney were the scorers when the Bruins erupted with three goals in the last five minutes Saturday to defeat Detroit Red Wings 5-3.

McKenney scored one goal and assisted on another in the last five minutes Sunday when Boston tied Toronto Maple Leafs 3-3.

In other games Saturday, Montreal Canadiens beat Chicago Black Hawks 2-1 and Barry Cullen scored three goals as Toronto beat New York Rangers 7-1.

In Sunday's games, Detroit upset Montreal 4-2 and Chicago edged New York 4-3.

MOVE NEAR DETROIT

The fourth-place Bruins, apparently solid again after a lengthy slump, moved to within a point of third-place Detroit and two of second-place New York as a result of the three-point week-end. Toronto is two points behind.

Wings suffered another loss Saturday when all-star right winger Gordie Howe suffered possible rib fractures in the first period when he was sandwiched by two Bruins. It was not known how long he would be out.

TWO GOALS DOWN

Boston was losing 3-1 to Toronto at 16:2 of the third period Sunday. McKenney scored his fourth goal in three games on a pass from Toppazzini and with one second left, started a play that resulted in Leo Labine tying the score. Goalie Harry Lumley was off the ice at the time.

Ron Stewart scored twice for Toronto and Gary Alderson once. Doug Mohns was the other Boston scorer.

Delvecchio was back at work Sunday when the Wings, missing Howe, defeated Montreal on Detroit ice for the first time this season.

Delvecchio scored twice again for 13 goals this season. Forbes Kennedy and Johnny Wilson also scored for Detroit. Bernie Geoffrion scored his 27th, high in the league, and Henri Richard his 21st for Montreal.

The Hawks bounced back Sunday and broke a 17-game jinx by goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley and the Rangers to defeat New York 4-3. It was the first victory for Chicago over New York with Worsley in goal at Chicago Stadium since Jan. 30, 1955.

SNELLING WINS FIFTH TITLE

(From CP and UP Reports) Charles Snelling, with his fifth straight Canadian senior men's title in tow, led a strong Toronto contingent that dominated berths on the team to represent Canada in the world figure skating championships in Paris, February 12-15.

The skaters, ranging in age from 16 to 20, were chosen Sunday night following the three-day Canadian figure skating championships which ended in Ottawa Saturday night. They are:

Snelling, Ed Collins, Bob Paul and Barbara Wagner, defending world senior pairs champions; Otto and Maria Jelinek, brother-and-sister pair team; dance teams Bill McLachlan and Geraldine Fenton, and Hugh Smith and Beverly Orr, all of Toronto; Marg Crossland, Calgary, and Don Jackson, Oshawa, Ont. Toronto skaters captured eight of 10 events at the Canadian championships.

The only championships that didn't go to Toronto were the senior ladies' singles crown, won by 17-year-old Margaret Crossland, of Calgary, and the junior pairs event, captured by the Ottawa duo of Alistair Munro and Judith Rudd.

Snelling, 20-year-old Toronto Granite Club star, put on a dazzling free skating display to win the men's title handily over Jackson and Collins.

Jackson, 1955 junior champion and runner-up to Snelling the last two years, seemed to be a solid choice of the 2,000 spectators on hand for

If Howie Was Shorter Pat Would Be Happier

Record Turnout Watches Flyers Squeeze by Cougars

By DOUG PEDEEN
Edmonton 5, Cougars 3

If Howie Yanosik was a bit shorter, Pat Egan might be a happier man today.

The Victoria Cougar coach wouldn't care if the five-eight Edmonton defenceman sprouted into a six-footer today, but for a fleeting instant in Saturday's Western Hockey League game at Memorial Arena, Pat would have willingly parted with a week's pay for a chance to trim a couple of inches off Howie's arms.

Proving once again that the man who makes the key play in a hockey game is often lost in the rush to applaud goal scorers, Yanosik plucked probable victory away from the Cougars and helped the Flyers over a rough spot on the trail that led to a 5-3 Edmonton triumph.

And he needed every one of his inches to do it. Deadlocked, 2-2 after two periods, the Cougars were hammering at the Edmonton goal in the opening minutes of the third session. Gordie Wilson and Tom McCarthy broke through and goalie Dennis Riggan had to move quickly to block McCarthy's close-in drive from the left side.

The puck dropped in front of an open net and Wilson moved in for the clinch shot. But Yanosik, hustling from behind, reached out and got the tip of his stick under Wilson's weapon and lifted it over the puck.

With McCarthy and Wilson trapped at the Edmonton end, Yanosik led a return rush and watched lean Len Lunde take a single goal by tipping in Egan's blue-line blazer and the Cougars made a last-ditch effort to force overtime, pulling goalie Emile Francis with 65 seconds remaining when they got a faceoff in the Edmonton zone.

Colin Kilburn, the main reason why 5,433 customers — a record Memorial Arena hockey crowd — paid their way into the arena, drove the puck toward the empty net. It just missed, bouncing off the net frame on the right side. Although McCarthy attempted to lift the puck into centre ice, Flyers kept it in and coach Tony Leswick made no mistake when he got a chance at the open goal.

It was an entirely satisfactory evening for Kilburn, playing his only Victoria game against the club he was coaching and managing earlier in the season. Given a fine welcome from the fans, Kilburn opened the scoring when Raglan was serving a high-sticking penalty and received credit for an assist on Leswick's tally. He also picked up four penalties, two of them for tiffs with Raglan.

However, most of the fans were pulling for a Cougar victory and they saved their biggest cheer for Egan when he evened the count at 1-1 early in the second period while Kilburn was sitting out a penalty for tripping Wilson.

Egan, claiming icing should have been called on Kilburn's last-minute shot, drew misconduct and game misconduct penalties as he roughed linesman Toby Brown while heatedly protesting a decision that the puck had travelled through the crease and thus could not be icing.

Fortunate to be only one goal behind after collecting five penalties in the first 10 minutes, the Cougars were an impressive club for the next 35 minutes of the fast, exciting argument and seldom looked like they deserved to be 22 points behind third-place Seattle in the WHL's Coast Division.

Although they mixed enough mistakes in with their good efforts to pave the way for two Edmonton goals, the Cats would probably have won except for some brilliant shot-stopping by Riggan and Yanosik's key play.

Lucky when Eddie Dorohoy lost control of the puck after faking him out of position on a first-period break, Riggan came up with several tremendous stops in his total of 32 saves, particularly against McCarthy, Wilson and Bud Sylverson.

Francis, who included an almost unbelievable leg-pad save against Chuck Holmes among his 27 stops, also turned in a starry effort.

Four-Title Spree For Rickie Gough

Favored stars came through as expected Saturday at Club Sirocco as Art Ngai retained his Victoria city table tennis singles championship and Nancy Craig made a successful comeback to wrest the ladies' singles crown from May Wong.

It was a family affair in the men's singles final as Art faced brother Eddie and squeezed out a 19-21, 21-15, 21-8, 25-23 victory.

Shawnigan Lake's Jaunt Successful Shawnigan Lake Boys' School rugby squads compiled a .666 average against Vancouver's St. George's School Saturday, winning two of three matches against their rivals at Vancouver.

Ralph Vanderstuy and Barry McAlpine paced the Shawnigan first team's 23-3 win with a total of 17 points between them, while Shawnigan's under-20 pounders gained a 12-11 edge over their Vancouver opposition.

The Shawnigan Lake third team was blanked, 8-0.

CALGARY GIRL TAKES CROWN

Gough and Ray Dawson captured the men's doubles crown from Ray Greenwood and Hobbs by scores of 21-18, 19-21, 21-18, 21-19, in one of the best matches of the night.

Hobbs evened accounts with Gough by beating him out for the junior singles title.

Gough in turn fought right back with a win over Dennis Beckwith for the juvenile singles championship and George Clark tied to W. Bowden in the seniors' singles.

Gough and Hobbs finally got together to fashion a junior doubles win against Gary Troughton and Dennis Page and Hobbs collected his fourth title with a win in the mixed doubles final.

The Paul-Wagoner competition mixed spectacular manoeuvres with flawless execution to receive the first place votes of all five judges.

In the fourth competition, William McLachlan of Toronto and Miss Fenton retained their senior dance championship.

Flyers Whistling All the Way Home

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Flyers, after a successful stint against Coast teams of the Western Hockey League, are heading for home today to prepare for a new assault on the top spot of the league's Prairie Division.

The Flyers must be more than a little pleased with their Coast tour. Their two wins, one tie and one loss left them only two points behind the leading Winnipeg Warriors in the Prairies.

Both the Flyers and Colin Kilburn, the former Victoria manager, ended their tour on a happy note. Kilburn followed up a goal and an assist against his ex-teammates Saturday with a brace Sunday, when Edmonton defeated Seattle Americans, 5-4.

Flyer coach Tony Leswick also scored two against Seattle while Jerry Melnyk picked up one. Don Chiupka, with a brace Sunday, when Edmonton defeated Seattle Americans, 5-4.

ALBERNI BOYS LOSE BID FOR B.C. CURLING TITLE

Prince George High School will represent British Columbia in the Dominion high school curling championships to be held in Charlottetown, P.E.I., Feb. 14.

The Prince George rink won the right Saturday to compete in the national competition after winning three out of four games in the provincial championships at Cranbrook.

Trail was second, winning two games and losing one. Revelstoke won one game and lost three, while Alberni, Vancouver Island champions, won one and lost two.

Tide No Problem For UBC Birds

Victoria's Crimson Tide will be the Birds with a penalty back in the running for McKee's season.

Mike Chambers picked up a pair of tries for the University side while single tries were scored by Ted Hunt, Doug Muir, Peter Bugg, Lee Smith, John Legg and Dave Howard.

The loss all but ended Victoria's hopes of winning the historic trophy in the three-team series. The Tide has dropped two successive decisions while UBC has a win and loss and Vancouver Rebs have triumphed in both of their outings.

Former Victoria kicking ace Steve Smith opened the scoring

Gorge Too Deep For Hungarians

Canadian Hungarians may be wondering about the hospitality of other Victoria and District Football League teams today.

Gorge Hotel hammered the Hungarians, newcomers to the league cellar as they handed out a merciless 11-0 defeat at Beacon Hill Park Sunday.

Barely recognizable as the energetic team that opened the season, Hungarians exhibited little co-ordination and even less defensive strength as the Hotelmen appeared able to score almost at will.

Bill Abbott again set the victory pace for Gorge, scoring once in the opening half and completing a hat trick with two goals after the breather. Jack McIntyre, Bill Hope and Don McGee each collected two goals while Bob Clarke and Dunc McCague each scored once.

In other Sunday games, Victoria Kickers hammered out a 7-0 victory at Topaz Park and Brodies Bakery defeated Punjab United, 6-2, at Heywood Avenue Park.

Brodies held their two-point lead over Gorge in the league's second-half race for a playoff shot against first-half champion Tillicums.

Henry Vanderhorst split a pair of markers between halves to lead Kickers, while Alf Heegen, Joe Hillhouse, Leroy Bond and Don Hughes each scored singles.

Punjab goals, both in the first half, came from Chris Braun and Adrian Hendrickson.

Province Cup action at Royal Athletic Park Saturday saw an otherwise lethargic Tillicum team come through when the money was on the table to eke out a 2-1 win over Esquimalt.

TIME OUT!

MINOR SOCCER

MacNutt's Finally End Lengthy Drought

MacNutt's Grocery has finally made an entry on the credit side of the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association ledger.

After collecting nothing but debits for the better part of two seasons, the Grocers capped their recent improved play by playing to a 2-2 draw with pace-setting Mariners in a Division II match at Windsor Park Sunday.

It was the first time MacNutt's have escaped defeat in almost two years.

And it was a former Mariner who salvaged the tie.

TIED AT HALF

Tom Collett gave Mariners an early lead, but Dick Gibson evened the count before the intermission.

After Barney Fredrickson again boosted the division leaders in front, Norm Hiron, at centre-forward for Mariners last season, hammered the goal that gave MacNutt's a point to their credit.

In Division II action, John Balloch scored two goals to pace Texaco to a 5-1 victory over Langford Buffaloes. Barry Sadler, Wayne Garrington and Dave Reece also counted for Texacos, while Dave Kewon notched the lone Langford tally.

Saturday scores:

Naturally, Esks' New Coach From Oklahoma!

EDMONTON (CP)—Melvin (Sam) Lyle, 35-year-old native of Eldorado, Ark., and for the last four seasons an assistant coach at the University of Oklahoma, has been signed as head coach of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference.

He replaces Frank (Pop) Ivy, who left the Eskimos after four years to become head coach of Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League.

"We finally chose Lyle after considering upwards of 30 applicants," Eskimo president Cec Ross said today in making the announcement. "One of the strongest persuasives in Lyle's case, in addition to his undoubted qualifications for the post, was his Oklahoma background."

Lyle, who succeeded Ivy at Oklahoma when Ivy came to Edmonton, was an all-state high school end at Eldorado. He spent three years in the United States Navy before enrolling at Louisiana State where he played end.

Lyle joins the Eskimos with eight seasons of coaching experience behind him, one at Louisiana State, three as an assistant at Georgia Tech and four at Oklahoma under Bud Wilkinson.

Lyle has never been associated with anything but a winner. The Georgia Tech and Oklahoma squads with which he worked had a .970 winning percentage during seven seasons with 74 victories in 77 starts. He was a player or coach in six different bowl games and was Oklahoma's head scout during his tenure under Wilkinson.

Lyle was among several candidates who came to Edmonton last week to discuss the job. "The feeling among the directors was that the fans would favor a continuation of the tie-up with the University of Oklahoma in view of what it has meant to us over the last four or five seasons," Ross said.

Under Ivy, Eskimos finished first in the Western Conference in all four years and three times won the national championship. Last season, they were beaten in three games in the western final by Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

3 ESCAPEES ARRESTED

NANAIMO — Three boys who escaped from Brannan Lake School Friday night were arrested at 6 p.m. Saturday in the Brechin district north of the city.

Police would not say whether the boys would be charged with the theft of a 42-foot cruiser Saturday. Taken from the waterfront here, the $35,000 craft, property of H. J. Welch of Qualicum, was found on the beach at Departure Bay. A power dinghy was missing.

Sheep Owners Ask Action On Stray Dogs

DUNCAN — Sheep owners attending the annual meeting of the Cowichan Agricultural Society here demanded strong action against stray dogs that have killed four sheep in this area.

The killings occurred at Glenora, Cowichan Station, and Maple Bay Road.

R. H. M. Shaw, of the sheep committee, was empowered to prepare "as strong a resolution as possible" to be placed before the society directors for action.

CALF KILLED

Members will seek the assistance of Robert Strachan, Cowichan-Newcastle MLA and CCF leader.

Frank Barjon complained that one of his calves had been killed by dogs at Cowichan Station, and that no compensation is provided under the Sheep Protection Act.

Qualicum Hears New Hospital District Plans

QUALICUM BEACH — Plans for the proposed hospital district were outlined to the Chamber of Commerce here by Russ Inkster and Gordon Frith of the Nanaimo hospital administration.

The district would extend from Cassidy to a mile south of Qualicum Bay, and would be served by the proposed Nanaimo hospital.

Motion recommending diversion of the new highway to the south of the village was defeated. Present highway line passes through Qualicum Beach village.

It was recommended that tourist advertising be negotiated direct by resort owners and others concerned. Garney St. Germain was appointed the chamber's delegate on the local Centennial committee.

Cost of Christmas street lighting, at present born by retail merchants who installed the colored lights, will be referred to the village council.

Family Gets $10,340 In Sportsman's Death

A Port Alberni widow and her two children will receive $10,340 in compensation for the death of her husband, well-known sportsman William Hall Kendrick, 44, as a result of an auto accident Jan. 11, 1957.

Kendrick was struck by a car driven by Donald Van Pelt, of Clarkston, Wash., an itinerant construction worker.

Mr. Justice A. E. Lord, in Supreme Court chambers in Vancouver, authorized Elsie Winnifred Kendrick to accept $6,895. Her son, Gregory, aged three-and-a-half, will receive $1,645, and her daughter, Karen, two, $1,800. The money represents the limit of Van Pelt's automobile insurance.

The accident occurred at 7 a.m., while Kendrick was walking across a street in Port Alberni to speak to a friend.

He died a day later in West Coast General Hospital. He had been employed by Dominion Construction Ltd., as a steelworker, and was well known in Vancouver Island baseball and softball circles.

Steady Drop Predicted In Jobless

NANAIMO — Unemployed total here is 3,152, down 165 from the peak reached during the first week in January, according to Jack Clark, National Employment Service manager.

Logging firms are still closed down, but increased employment in machine and repair shops, and the start of construction on a shopping centre in Harewood, has led him to believe that unemployment will decrease steadily.

MANY AFFECTED

Noting in his weekly report that the province-wide strike of pulp mill workers has affected sawmills, retail stores, laundries, dry cleaners, restaurants, hotels and transportation facilities, he also found sales of new cars at their normal level.

About 90 per cent of carpenters in the area are unemployed, he said.

100 Attend Labor Meet At Nanaimo

NANAIMO — A two-day institute on labor matters ended here Sunday night with a dinner at the Malaspina Hotel, attended by the 100 Canadian Labor Congress members enrolled. Students were welcomed Saturday by George Home, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, and Percy Lawson, CLC Pacific region representative, at sessions in Nanaimo Senior High School.

Instructors were Joe Morris, IWA president in B.C.; Ed Linder, IWA secretary in Duncan; Grant McNeil, a veteran unionist; and Jack Moore, IWA official from Port Alberni.

Dr. Allan Thomas, member of the UBC extension branch, spoke at the Sunday dinner on adult education.

"P. A. Gagliardi is a great man . . . who else could have persuaded the Times to print the word 'peripatetic' . . . did you hear Mr. Gagliardi is replacing Pierre Radisson on the TV? . . . his show will be called 'Have gone, will travel' . . ."

"I can remember when you could get a full-size five-cent candy bar for only a dime."

"Don't kid yourself about the government planning to spring an election this spring. You think they want to be unemployed, too?"

Higher Court Trial Faces Three Youths

Preliminary hearing for three youths charged with breaking and entering Economy Steam Laundry, 607 John, early Jan. 15, was held today in city police court.

Harry Douglas Hoskin, 19, of Mt. Newton Crossroad, Ronald Leslie McMeekin, 18, of 1906 Birch, and Norman Karl McKenzie, 20, of 1035 Empress, were remanded to Tuesday for committal for trial.

Trial of the fourth, Thomas Leslie Hammond, 17, of 2632 Cedar Hill Road, was adjourned to Thursday. Hammond was transferred from juvenile court.

YOUTHS HIDING

Det. Alexander Briggs testified he had been called to the laundry at 2 a.m. In company with Det. Angus Munro, he found a cash drawer upset on a counter in the office.

Further search disclosed four youths hiding in a 200-lb pile of soiled clothing at the rear of the building.

Sam Swetnam, president of Economy Steam Laundry, told the court $5.95 had been taken from one cash box. The money was found in the pile of clothing later that morning by laundry employee Douglas John Knight, 1390 Hastings.

Magistrate H. C. Hall overruled a submission by Robert D. Harvey Sr., counsel for Hoskin, and David Sloan, counsel for McMeekin, that there was not enough evidence to warrant trial.

Search for the body began immediately and it was Mr. Mason, using a device for seeing under water, who spotted the boy at 3 p.m. in deep water 100 feet beyond the railway bridge.

IN DEEP WATER

He and Eric Clay, of Shawnigan Lake, made the search from a boat that was lowered down the creek by a rope and steadied by ropes to the shore.

The log on which the victim had been riding was found one-half mile farther on, with his toy boat still attached.

50 SEARCH

About 50 persons took part in the search, and a bulldozer and wrecking truck were on hand to break up a log jam in the creek if necessary.

An inquest will be held in Duncan at 7 tonight.

City Youth Drowns at Shawnigan As Gallant Rescue Attempt Fails

Cowichan School Trustee In 'Real Act of Heroism'

A boyish love of play on the water proved fatal Saturday to eight-year-old Kenneth Daryl Thomas of Victoria who tumbled from a log and drowned in rain-swollen Shawnigan Creek at its outfall from Shawnigan Lake.

He was the son of Mrs. James Frederick Thomas, a widow, of 1742 Pembroke Street.

A gallant rescue attempt that failed just by inches made the drowning doubly tragic.

TOY BOAT

Kenneth had a toy boat, and it is believed he climbed on a floating log while sailing the toy. He was next seen by Bert Larmand, a Shawnigan Lake youngster, riding on the log in the current and calling for help.

As he called he slipped from the log, and immediately young Bert ran to Mason's General Store for assistance.

The proprietor, Cowichan School District No. 65 trustee Pat Mason, ran to the creek and dived in fully clothed. The young victim was about 50 feet ahead of him, and sank below the surface as he neared the railway bridge crossing the creek.

TOUCHED HIM

"I could see him rolling on the bottom and I dived down for him and touched him with my foot," Mr. Mason said. "But I just couldn't catch him."

"I was worried for a while myself," he said, "and was praying 'help me, protect me.' I was getting pretty cold. The current carried me over to the bank, and I pulled myself out."

Rev. G. Howard Turpin, a witness, called Mr. Mason's attempt a "real act of heroism."

Mrs. Turpin, who saw the boy swept down stream, estimated Mr. Mason swam 250 feet in trying to reach the boy.

IN DEEP WATER

Search for the body began immediately and it was Mr. Mason, using a device for seeing under water, who spotted the boy at 3 p.m. in deep water 100 feet beyond the railway bridge.

He and Eric Clay, of Shawnigan Lake, made the search from a boat that was lowered down the creek by a rope and steadied by ropes to the shore. The log on which the victim had been riding was found one-half mile farther on, with his toy boat still attached.

25-Cent-a-Ton Increase In Coal Prices

Coal prices in Victoria will be increased 25 cents a ton on all sizes Saturday.

Dealers have announced the increases will be made to meet wage increases won recently by yard and delivery workers.

New mechanized operations prevented a rise of 50 cents a ton that would have resulted from previous methods of handling coal, one dealer said.

Effective Saturday, prices of higher quality coal will range from $23.85 to 24.65 for a ton of lump; $22.60 to $24.25 for egg; $17.50 to $18.90 for nut; $18.75 for stoker; and $19.75 for special blends.

He leaves a son, John Monteith, who lives at 5688 Dalhousie Road, Vancouver, and a sister, Miss Neta Monteith, also living in Vancouver.

"My father had a full life and he died peacefully after a short illness," John Monteith told The Times.

"According to his wishes, the funeral will be a quiet family affair and there will be no flowers."

John Monteith is well-known in Vancouver as a manufacturer of carbon paper.

Seamen Sent To Jail for Ship Damage

Term Meshes With Freighter Sailing

Three British seamen were sentenced to seven days in Oakalla Prison today after pleading guilty to a charge of committing wilful damage aboard the British freighter Baron Inverclyde in Victoria Jan. 11.

The trio—John Burns, 19; Patrick Sales, 20; and Frederick Phipps, 24; all of London—pleaded guilty to committing damage in excess of $50 to the ship's furnishings.

They were sentenced by Judge J. B. Clearhue in Victoria County Court. Before passing sentence the judge asked when the Baron Inverclyde would be sailing for England.

He was told the ship would be sailing from Vancouver, Feb. 3 or 4—about the time the three men will complete their sentence. It left Victoria last week.

The seamen were committed to County Court after a preliminary hearing in police court before Magistrate H. C. Hall.

AT DRYDOCK

A shipboard disturbance which was understood to have been precipitated by dissatisfaction over conditions aboard the ship, at that time moored at the government drydock at Esquimalt for repairs.

In police court a Crown application to withdraw a wilful damage charge and substitute a new charge was rejected by Magistrate Hall.

Nature of the requested new charge was not disclosed. The magistrate dismissed a separate charge against Sales of assaulting the second engineer aboard the freighter.

AS SONG SAYS:

It Might As Well Be Spring!

Even weatherman Bill Mackie admits that it might as well be spring.

Daffodils and tulips are bursting from the ground, robins are chirping of summer—and Sunday, the temperature in Victoria rose to a cheery 48 degrees.

On the same Sunday last year Victoria was coated with five inches of snow and the temperature meandered from 18 to 31 degrees.

The average temperature here covering the first 26 days in January this year was 44.5 degrees, Mr. Mackie said, almost six degrees above the norm.

A cold snap is "still possible," he said, "but there's no indication of one yet. It looks like we're in for an open winter."

However, he warned, "it just takes one outbreak of bad weather to do a lot of damage."

Sports Car Fans In 8-Hour Loop To Port Renfrew

Members of the British Sports Touring Club, driving in 12 cars, made a loop trip Sunday from Victoria to Port Renfrew and return in a comfortable eight hours, including stops.

The party met at the Shawnigan Lake cutoff on the Malahat for the drive west of Shawnigan Lake and down the San Juan River valley to Port Renfrew. Return was by way of Jordan River and Sooke, to make a round trip of upwards of 140 miles.

The Shawnigan Lake-Port Renfrew road was reported solid, but with potholes and one minor washout that did not impede traffic. The Port Renfrew-Jordan River section had a "washboard" surface with a few soft patches.

He'll be sent to RCEME unit at Barriefield, Ont.

Victorian Heads Governor's House

Commander Francis J. D. Pemberton, 52, of Victoria, has been appointed comptroller of the Governor General Massey's household in Ottawa, it was announced today.

He succeeds Lt.-Col. Locke Malkin as the household's financial administrator.

Commander Pemberton was engaged in business in Victoria before he joined the Canadian Navy in 1940. He served as liaison officer between British, American and Canadian staffs in New York after a period of escort duty on the North Atlantic.

He spent 10 years as naval attaché in Washington, the Hague and Copenhagen and for the past two years has been on the staff of the director of naval intelligence in Ottawa.

Esquimalt Tops V.I. In Road Expenditure

Provincial highways department spent $2,308,710 in Esquimalt riding during 1956-57 fiscal year to make it tops on Vancouver Island.

Total spending by the department during the year was $84,147,002, according to the annual report tabled in the legislature.

Almost two-thirds of the money spent in Esquimalt was for new construction of the Malahat highway.

Yale constituency topped all ridings in the province with $7,754,567. Most of this was for Trans-Canada highway work in the Fraser Canyon.

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi's Kamloops riding was second at $5,322,004.

Other Island ridings: Cowichan - Newcastle, $1,331,186; Comox $1,235,215; Nanaimo-Islands, $785,953; Alberni $427,596; Saanich $318,558.

Talks Continue In Pulp Strike

Negotiations in the 11-week-old pulp strike continued today in Vancouver between labor and management representatives following weekend meetings.

No immediate comment was made by either side on how far the negotiations have progressed.

Two men were picked up shortly after by city police about two blocks from the Lawson home.

Dairies Deny Dictating Retail Prices

Victoria's four major dairies are not dictating retail prices of milk in stores, a spokesman said today.

He denied a report in which two unidentified storekeepers had claimed they were told to continue charging 24c for a quart of standard milk, after the dairies reduced their wholesale price from 23 to 22c a quart last week.

Prices for milk in Greater Victoria stores range from 23 to 25c a quart following the reduction.

ASK The TIMES

Q—So many people seem to think that artificial limbs are made of cork but they are not. How is it they are called cork legs?—A. J. L.

A—Originally artificial limbs were made of wood, called peg legs. This used to throw the poor legless chap off balance, so the wooden peg-legs were filled with cork to lighten the weight. Thus the name. Today, aluminum is mostly used and attempts are made continually to try and achieve an exact balance between the "non-operative" limb and the original.

Folding Clothes Hangers Make Packing... a Cinch!

By PENNY SAVER

This is about the time of year when people start to plan trips to other countries. With this in mind, I've been thinking of how to ease packing worries... and here is one idea! It's a folding coat hanger constructed of wood, complete with clothes brushes attached to each arm! At $1.25 each, a set of these clothes hangers would make a useful and thoughtful "bon voyage" gift for any globe trotter! They are compact for packing, too... and they're light!

On another counter I found a collection of stiffened elastic hangers folded neatly into compact little taffeta cases. It struck me that these hangers would not only be practical in packing, but also to carry in one's purse.

Drop in to this shop and look at the collection of gadgets. The elastic hanger costs 98 cents.

Still in the same shop, I wandered along to the jewelry counter. I found the prettiest and gayest imitation mother of pearl plastic bracelet and earring set. The bracelet was wide

TODAY'S RECIPE

SWEET AND SOUR CABBAGE

Two unpeeled red apples, chopped. 1 onion, chopped. 2 tablespoons butter. 1/2 medium-sized head cabbage, shredded. 1 cup water. 1/2 cup brown sugar. 1/2 cup vinegar. 1/2 teaspoon salt. 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Saute apple and onion in butter for 10 minutes. Add cabbage and water. Cover and steam for 20 minutes, or until cabbage is just tender-crisp. Add vinegar and sugar, cook until piping hot. Season with salt and pepper and if you like, extra butter. Makes six servings.

Water Garden IODE Project

Miss Christine MacNab presented a report on the Centennial project of Municipal Chapter, IODE, at a meeting recently. The plan is to construct a water garden in the grounds of the new low-rental housing units to be built by the Canadian Institute for the Blind in Victoria.

Mrs. A. Warren Smith presided at the meeting, at which Mrs. B. T. Shaw reported on services at home and abroad, saying that new and used clothing valued at $491 had been sent to refugee camps, infants' homes and welfare centres abroad.

Canadianization and immigration convener, Mrs. W. R. Freethy, reported that toys and candies had been distributed among 55 new Canadian families at Christmas.

Date for the annual meeting of the chapter was set for the middle of March.

Queen's Ball

Sons of Scotland, District 16, will hold the annual Queen Elizabeth ball in Hotel Vancouver ballroom on Feb. 22.

James Sim, district chief and chairman of the event, announced today that proceeds from the ball will go to the B.C. Cancer Foundation. The ball, started in 1941 to give assistance to people in the Battle of Britain, was granted the right to use the royal name and has continued to hold worthy causes ever since. Last year, proceeds from the event went to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society. District 16 represents lodges in Vancouver, Victoria and Vernon. Members of Mr. Sim's organizing committee are D. A. MacDonald, A. H. MacDonald, John Melville, Charles Wilson, Jack MacDonald, Alex Murray, Mrs. Margaret Clark, Bob Cruickshank and C. R. Main.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Her Friends Have Changed Since Making Resolutions

Practically everyone makes new year resolutions. It would be interesting to know what the average length of life is for them—the resolutions, not the people.

I hardly recognize my friends since the first of the year. Some who smoked like chimneys now are biting their nails instead. Others have lost mustaches while some are growing beards. Still more have resolved not to fight at bridge, so instead of the usual ruckus there is stony silence.

A few are limping about because they are doing exercises for the first time in a long while. One has given up desserts and for the first time in her life chews gum. Still another has a blister on her finger because she resolved to catch up with and be better about her correspondence. One feminine friend who always has dressed very smartly but in black exclusively, appeared the other night in a flaming red dress, and on and on it goes!

New Year's resolutions are good for us. They make us think. Here are a few of the things my friends resolved. Why not check yourself against this list and see how many of the same resolves you made?

1. To lose those extra pounds.
2. To exercise daily, for health and beauty.
3. To be more careful about grooming.
4. To take rest periods and avoid so much rush.
5. To always put the car key in the same place.
6. To stop getting excited about non-essentials.
7. To remember that teenage period is a period which both parents and children have to go through but that it is temporary pain and will pass. Therefore, to remember that the main thing is to stay close to them. In a few years the gap will narrow.
8. To be more tolerant.
9. To laugh more and have more fun and stop being grim and tense about things.
10. Not to waste glands in ridiculous ways such as sensitivity and envy.

11. To make a real study of what is known today about nutrition and to put that knowledge into practice in the home.

12. To save time for some new activity which is interesting.

The important thing is to make your resolutions for a reasonably short time. Anyone can stick to a determination for a definite length of time. After that, the results will be so rewarding that you will wish to continue.

Patou Sacks the Sack at Opening Of Paris Fashions; Styles Fitted

PARIS (UP) — Jean Patou struck a heavy blow today at the sack dress in his opening show of the 1958 Paris fashion season.

He went so far as to bring back the fitted waist. With the spring showings barely under way the word raced from designer to designer fashion editor to buyer: the sack has been sacked.

The tide was running so strong against the sack created last season by the late Christian Dior that there was doubt his young successor, Yves Saint-Laurent, could bring it back even if he wanted to.

Saint-Laurent introduces his spring creations Thursday. Meanwhile Patou's designer, Madeleine Matezos (Mademoiselle Mad) introduced a natural, easy-to-wear, easy-to-move-around-in line.

Hemlines have been moving up and down in the collections shown so far. Patou left them right where they were last season, just below the knee.

Patou nonchalantly brought back waists in their natural shape and place. Many of his dresses had fitted waists.

Those in the high-fashion know already were betting on a shapelier, sexier look for 1958.

Opening salutes to the spring season were fired yesterday by Lucile Manguin and Alix Gres.

Both ignored last week's Italian collections which packed a baggier sack than ever. Manguin and Gres tucked in the sack and brought back the waist which, however, wandered from chest to hips as if it didn't feel quite at home yet.

All three are pace-setters. But the suspense will not be over until Thursday with the show- ing by Dior's new designer, 22- year-old Yves Saint-Laurent, already can see a soft, feminine silhouette.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions will receive worthwhile prizes.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Dennis Doherty, age 12, of Cape Elizabeth, Maine, for his question:

What Makes the Moon Change?
The man in the moon is a changeable fellow. At full moon he stares at the earth from a face as round as a penny. But night after night that round face shrinks. It becomes a half moon, and two weeks after the full moon we see the thin crescent of the old moon. The next night there seems to be no moon at all. Then the new moon appears, a pale thin crescent pointing the opposite way from the old moon. It takes the man in the moon just over 27 days to go through all his changes.

The golden moon seems first to peep, move around until his full face stares at the earth, then turns around glancing back over his shoulder. But this is not what happens at all. For the face of the man in the moon is always staring at the earth, whether we see it or not. Of course, it is not really a face and there is no real man in the moon. The staring eyes and wide open mouth are low, shadowy places on the moon's landscape.

The moon is a round ball, but it never turns so that we can see the other side. The same

Round Trip Takes 27 Days

The moon rises in a ring around and around the earth. This path is its orbit. Each journey around its orbit takes about 27 days. This is also the time it takes to turn on its axis. It also explains why the same side always faces the earth.

IF RUSS ATTACK U.S.

20 Million Could Die

WASHINGTON (AP)—A scientist who directed a secret study of U.S. defenses says the Russians now could mount a combined bomber-missile submarine attack that could kill 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 Americans.

Dr. Ellis A. Johnson, director of the Johns Hopkins University operations research office, says U.S. defense against an immediate attack is "very poor."

Johnson also says, in a copyrighted interview in the magazine U.S. News and World Report, an adequate defense would cost an extra $15,000,000,000 a year for an indefinite number of years.

The Johns Hopkins operations research office was set up 10 years ago to make scientific analyses of military problems. Under Johnson's direction, it conducted for the army a study of U.S. defenses. The report of that study has not been made public.

In the interview, Johnson says he believes the Russians today could "throw several hundred bombers at us" and perhaps 50 or more missile-firing submarines—"and it would be more than adequate." He said he would expect them to be armed with nuclear weapons.

Man Fined $25 For Driving While Suspended

Fine of $25 was levied against Leslie J. Folland, 1028 Craigflower, who was found guilty in Saanich police court last week of driving while his licence was under suspension.

Folland told the court his wife had signed for a registered letter from the motor vehicle branch last July but left for eastern Canada the following day without mentioning it had come.

The letter informed Folland his licence had been suspended for lack of financial responsibility. His insurance had expired. Folland said he did not learn of the action until Dec. 2.

Under the Motor Vehicle Act, Magistrate H. C. Hall said, it is not even necessary to send a letter of notification. Suspension is in effect immediately it is set by the department.

Parks May Get Slot Machines

A plan to replace concessions at city enclosed parks with food and drink vending slot machines is to receive further study by Victoria parks committee.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren today recommended against the plan which was put forward last year by Ald. E. D. McEwen. Mr. Warren felt machines would be unable to provide all the services now available from concessionaires. He asked applications be called for operation of park concessions, the city to receive 10 per cent of the gross, or a minimum of $500 a year. The committee voted to hear further from Ald. McEwen.

Auto Insurance Loss Ratio Soars

Automobile insurance underwriters in B.C. suffered a 74.51 per cent loss ratio in the 1956 calendar year, a report tabled in the legislature showed.

The report, by the superintendent of insurance, showed the firms earned a net premium income of $24,016,000 and had losses totalling $17,887,000.

Loss ratio for the previous year was 59.01.

Johnson estimates that more than half the attackers would get through American defenses, as now constituted. He says he assumes they would make the Strategic Air Command their principal target.

What's New at Eaton's

Despite its 100 years, B.C. just a young lad compared the venerable ages of most of the countries of the civilized world. But we've done a lot of growing up since that November day in 1858 when British Columbia was born. Why, back these days, B.C.'s pioneers had to pack in supplies to their little log cabins—but now we have big department stores (like EATON'S, of course) with all kinds of wares to sell, from foods to furniture, to the latest Par fashions. And, of course, big EATON'S trucks whisk you extra-large purchases right to your door (which is very different from the door to your old homestead of 1858). So to help you celebrate these wonderful 100 years of progress EATON'S has many souvenirs of B.C.'s Centenary, for instance:

Souvenirs in Metal

If you plan to make B.C. Centennial Year the theme of your gift-giving, occasion this year, see the distinctive hand-wrought brass and copper pieces here at EATON'S. U.S. to Shield 5 Pact Nations

Great Mobile Power to Thwart
Any Invasion Staged by Reds

ANKARA, Turkey (CP) — State Secretary Dulles told leaders of the five Baghdad Pact nations today the United States will support them with "mobile power of great force" against any Communist invasion.

Dulles' keynote speech at the opening of the Middle East alliance's ministerial council meeting emphasized that any potential aggressor "knows in advance that his losses from aggression would far exceed any possible gains." But, he said, "if perchance deterrence fails" the United States will contribute its mobile power to save the people of the Middle East.

Dulles is attending a pact conference for the first time since the alliance was formed in 1955.

Others attending included Britain's Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd, Pakistani Premier Feroz Khan Noon, Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes and former Iraqi premier Nuri Al Said.

AID TO CONTINUE

Dulles said the United States will continue to provide economic aid to individual members of the pact.

Lloyd told the conference in his opening statement:

"If the Russians now have a real desire to achieve a relaxation of tension, this is because by our alliances we have defended resolutely the principles and interests vital to us . . .

"However, our constant aim must always be to reduce East-West tension and to seek agreement with the Soviet Union wherever and whenever this can be achieved without surrender of our vital interests."

Commenting on Russia's call for an early summit conference of world leaders, Lloyd said the level of a conference is not as important as "concrete and sensible results."

MOSLEMS WANT MORE

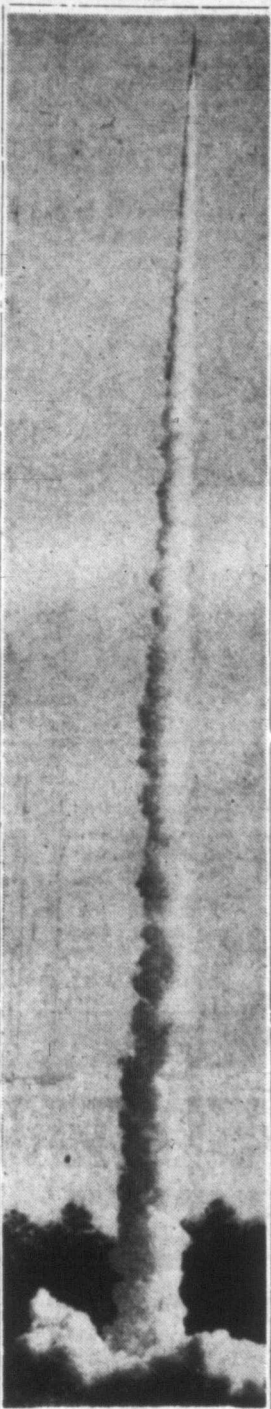

Lending weight to the economic aspects of the meeting were reports that the Moslem members—Turkey, Iran, Iraq and Pakistan—were ready to criticize the scale of Western aid programs in the Middle East as being inadequate to meet Russia's challenges.

Another internal matter was expected to be an Iraqi request for pact support for the Arab demand that Israel be pushed back to the frontiers recommended by the United Nations in 1947.

Lloyd and Dulles were reported intending to say they are not planning any new initiatives on the Palestine question but prefer instead to support any moves undertaken by the U.N.

Meanwhile, Dulles' presence at the council meeting for the first time is regarded as a symbol of American support for the pact.

The United States is a member of three pact committees but sits only as an observer on the ministerial council.

Egypt-Syria Merger Into Federation Due

CAIRO (AP)—The merger of Egypt and Syria into a single state is reported imminent. The newspaper Al Ahran said President Nasser and Syrian President Kuwatly would announce the union today.

B.C. Mine-Tax Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton said today officers of his department and the finance department are looking into the question of whether a British Columbia tax on mineral ores contravenes the British North America Act.

Senior Egyptian and Syrian leaders proclaimed the advantages of the proposed federation, and the Cairo press gave it full play. Public emphasis on the plan apparently was timed to take the edge off the opening of the Baghdad Pact conference today in Ankara, Turkey.

Al Ahran said Cairo would be the capital, the federation's name would be "The United Arab State" and there would be one government, one parliament and one army.

A plebiscite will be held in Egypt and Syria on the proposed union, Al Ahran said.

GROUNDING BY FRENCH

TCA's Viscounts Not Affected

MONTREAL (CP)—A Trans-Canada Air Lines spokesman said Saturday night Viscount aircraft used in Canada are of a later model than those grounded Saturday by Air France, Aer

He said TCA, which uses the later Viscount 754, would not be affected.

NEW STIMULANT SOON TO AID MENTAL CASES

NEW YORK (AP) — A brain stimulant to make normal people sharper and help pull many mentally ill back to reality was reported by a Georgia doctor Saturday.

It may be available by prescription in about three months.

The stimulant reported by Dr. Carl C. Pfeiffer, a 49-year-old researcher from Emory University, Emory, Ga. He presented his findings to a conference of the Brain Research Foundation.

Effective against schizophrenia, the stimulant also may help borderline mental or anxiety cases such as disturbed or delinquent children, he said.

Dr. Pfeiffer believes the stimulant, called dimethylaminoethanol or DMAE, exists naturally in normal brains. But some mentally ill persons may lack enough.

Fiscal Year Estimates Need Time

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today it will be a "little while yet" before the governments' estimates of expenditures for the new fiscal year are tabled in the Commons.

He said also, after a morning cabinet session, that he expects to announce some appointments Tuesday after another meeting of his colleagues. He gave no indication what jobs the appointments may cover.

The government hopes to propose the current session of Parliament Friday and there has been speculation that Mr. Diefenbaker may call a general election soon afterwards.

However, there have been reports that the new estimates, expected to reach a record of $5,500,000,000 or more, would be tabled early in a new session of Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker's casual remark concerning the new estimates may indicate that the minority government plans to proceed with a new session and bring in the estimates before dissolving Parliament for a new election.

Two further rockets were scheduled to be fired today.

BOMB BLAST BEFORE TALKS

ISTANBUL (AP) — One bomb blasted a warehouse of the U.S. Embassy compound and another shattered a private bookshop near the U.S. information centre in Ankara Sunday.

The explosions occurred 11 hours before the opening of a four-day Baghdad Pact conference.

State Secretary Dulles was in Ankara for the conference, but was not in the affected areas.

No injuries were reported.

Turkish Cypriots, U.K. Troops Clash

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — British authorities today placed a curfew on the Turkish sector of Nicosia following day-long fighting between Turkish Cypriots and British forces.

The hand-to-hand fighting broke out this morning and Ataturk Square, the centre of the Turkish sector of Nicosia, was turned into a battlefield.

Three persons were reported killed in the clashes. British policemen and soldiers as well as demonstrators were injured. The demonstrators, chanting slogans for the partition of Cyprus, clashed with British soldiers and Turkish mobile police who attempted to divert them from a march on the Greek area of the island capital city.

Showers of tear gas and baton charges failed to disperse the crowd. The slogan-chanting young Turks, many of them students, bombarded with bottles and stones police squads facing Ataturk Square.

Police Save Stranded Boys

DETROIT (AP) — Two half-frozen boys were plucked from a Lake St. Clair ice floe in a pre-dawn rescue today by four off-duty policemen, groping along inch-thick ice which they intermittently plunged through.

The boys, Lawrence W. Brandt and Richard Rouillard, were rescued by Sgts. Arthur Layman and Arthur Furno and patrolmen Arthur Deblawee and James Housey of St. Clair Shores, who continued the search after 70 others and a coast guard helicopter had given up for the night.

Mac Readies Reply To Bulganin Letter

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan, currently on a tour of five eastern Commonwealth countries, will reply to the latest letter from Russian Premier Bulganin in the next week or so, Alan Noble, minister of state for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today.

Noble said the government is "certainly agreeable to a summit meeting." But, he added, there must be some agreement on what is to be discussed and where, when and by whom it will be discussed.

Aneurin Bevan, Labor party foreign affairs spokesman, said his group agrees on the need for preparation. As for an agenda, Bulganin's letters contained sufficient proposals for this.

Thieves Take Cash, Bonds

MONTREAL (CP)—Approximately $2,300 in cash and an undetermined amount in savings bonds were stolen during the weekend from a trust company and a small bank.

The robbery occurred at La Societe Nationale de Fiducie, a trust company, and its banking subsidiary, La Caisse Nationale d'Economie.

In the preliminary stages of the investigation police said a fortune could have been taken.

U.S. Railways In Desperate Plight?

NEW YORK (BUP) — Some insiders said today that the suicide of Robert R. Young means the railroad industry of North America is in a really desperate situation.

The insiders said the most revealing fact is that New York Central stock is selling now for only $13.50 a share. Young paid an average of $22 a share for it in his dramatic proxy struggle to wrest control of the Central from the slipping grip of the Vanderbilt clan.

Boys' Hangout Scene of Death

A 14-year-old Belmont Park boy, apparently playing cowboys and Indians, strangled to death Sunday at the end of a rope in an arbutus tree.

The boy, Danny Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fraser, 469 Thetis Crescent, was found at 8.30 p.m. hanging from the tree 200 yards from his home.

He had been the object of a 40-man hunt in tangled brush and rocks from dusk Sunday.

Immediate efforts to revive him were unsuccessful and he was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The boy apparently had been playing with an 18-foot length of 1/4-inch rope which was found tied to a limb, passed over other branches and cinched around his neck.

The RCMP at Colwood has talked to several boys who had been playing with the youth, but so far haven't been able to piece together exactly how the tragedy occurred.

The spot where Danny Fraser

the body was found is known as a favorite hangout for boys. Indications pointed to accidental hanging.

Although Danny had been playing with six other youngsters Sunday afternoon, it appeared he was alone when the hanging took place.

The group of boys was last seen together about 3 p.m. They were playing in an area overlooking Esquimalt Lagoon on the Cavendish Estate, adjoining a fenced area between Royal Roads and the naval housing site.

Danny was seen on a raft with three boys paddling in the lagoon. Later they came ashore, some went off with the others to play ball, some went for a hike in the bush and others stayed to play.

Danny was last seen alive by his companions at about 4 p.m. His parents reported him missing after he failed to come home by 7 p.m.

Police, Cadets Engage in Search

Colwood police, playing a hunch, immediately asked for aid from the naval fire station at Belmont and Canadian Services College at Royal Roads, then began dragging lagoon waters.

The college turned out about 30 cadets, two of whom finally located the boy's body.

The search was in charge of Const. Gordon Irvine and Const. William McKenzie. With cadets were Royal Roads Commandant Col. Percy Stewart Cooper, and they used one of the college cutters on the lagoon.

With lights from the college, fire station and RCMP detachment, the men began combing the bush.

Scene of the tragedy was parallel to a Belmont Park sewerage line road in an area enclosed by a 10-foot steel fence. Another fence, made of wire and broken down in places, had to be crossed before the fatal tree could be reached.

It protruded over a broken outcropping of moss-covered, slippery rocks upon which the boys climbed. Several branches could be reached from the rocks.

It was suggested by police Danny could have been playing with the rope in such a way as to become tangled in it, then slipped off the rocks.

When found, the body was nearly touching ground with knees slightly bent.

The boy was wearing a green and brown tartan windbreaker, trousers, shoes and socks. Around his shoulders and neck were draped large pieces of cloth, one black, the other white, in the manner of a neckerchief or cape.

Rope Would Have Tightened Itself

Around his neck was what appeared to be the open-topped crown of a straw hat.

On his arrival at the scene Const. Irvine applied artificial respiration. At that time, however, it was thought the boy had been dead some time.

The rope had a simple snare-type noose in the end around Danny's neck. It would have tightened itself when weight was applied.

Danny was of heavy build and weighed about 135 pounds. A former Wolf Cub, he often played in the bush with friends. He was in grade seven at Belmont School.

The body was taken to McCall's funeral home.

Deputy coroner Dr. J. H. Moore said he could not decide whether an inquest would be necessary until he learned more details.

Mr. Fraser, a petty officer in the navy, and Mrs. Fraser have another son Gordon, 15.

PICTURES WITH JOHN D. TORY ELECTION POSE

OTTAWA (CP) — Government supporters in parliament are having their pictures taken with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, apparently in preparation for an election campaign.

A Progressive Conservative party source said Saturday a number of members of the Commons requested individual photos with Mr. Diefenbaker. The program later was extended to include all government supporters in the House.

The pictures will be useful on campaign posters and literature.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

We thank Thee, our Father, that we have a place in Thy family, "the family of God." We are grateful that we can share in the experiences of the saints who have gone before us, walking with them in the shadows, rejoicing with them in the victories. We thank Thee more than all that we can share in the life and love of Jesus, our elder brother and our Saviour. In His name we pray. Amen.

Election Due 'Any Day Now' Warns Pearson

IMPROVISED SAYS PEARSON

WINNIPEG (CP)—The new tax-sharing program announced Saturday by the federal government will benefit the provinces but it is improvised legislation, the opposition leader, Lester Pearson, said Sunday night.

Mr. Pearson said in an interview that the plan to increase the provincial share of tax revenue for one year should not have been instituted without consulting the provinces. The Liberal leader was to go to Brandon today to address the Chamber of Commerce.

Party Chiefs To Meet CCF Caucus

The B.C. provincial executive of the CCF will hold a meeting with the CCF caucus in the Legislative Buildings next Saturday at 9 a.m.

On Friday at 7 p.m. the executive will attend a banquet given by the Esquimalt and CCF associations in the Douglas Hall.

A. J. Rhodes will be in the chair and one of the chief speakers will be Robert Strachan, CCF leader.

Kadar Quits As Premier, Remains Boss

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Premier Janos Kadar offered his resignation to Hungary's parliament today, but he will continue to run the country's Red regime as first secretary of the Communist party.

Kadar in a 90-minute speech which was applauded repeatedly proposed that his 72-year-old first deputy, Ferenc Muennich, step up to the premiership. The vote on the proposals is expected Tuesday, with approval a virtual certainty.

Kadar said he also would remain in the cabinet. Kadar was the only leader in the Soviet bloc still holding the two key posts of premier and party first secretary.

He became premier in November, 1956, when Russian troops returned to Budapest and crushed the revolt against Soviet domination. Before that he held key posts in the brief anti-Russian government headed by Premier Imre Nagy. He also took over party leadership during the revolt.

Counter-Blow Threat In Venezuela Fades

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—The threat of a counter-blow against Venezuela's revolutionary government eased today. After a night of tension, the ruling junta appeared to have re-established order.

Reports that diehard supporters of ex-dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez were preparing to move against the junta put Venezuela on edge Sunday night.

New Scouting Plan Backed By Esquimalt

First step in decentralization of Victoria district scouting has taken place in Esquimalt where group committees have accepted the plan in principle.

Charles Medley, assistant district commissioner, will call a further meeting next week. Victoria district commissioner Lt.-Col. Reginald Girard proposed the appointment of three further assistant district commissioners as a major step in the decentralization plan.

The names proposed were W. H. Gibson, D. F. Mason and Mr. Medley. Selection goes to the provincial scouting authority for official appointment.

In Esquimalt, Gerald Stelek was named area badge secretary.

In his first speech at the grass roots level since election as new Liberal leader, Mr. Pearson outlined the issues he will take to the voters when the election is called.

The 200 delegates, which earlier gave Mr. Pearson a solid vote of confidence as new leader, rose in standing ovations before and after his speech.

Mr. Pearson said that the announcement Saturday of increases in provincial shares of the federal tax rental agreement "indicates we can expect an election will come soon—and I really mean any day now."

NO SOLUTIONS

He said the government could not be blamed for the deteriorating employment and foreign trade pictures but "it is fair to point out to the people that they have not brought out any solutions," he said.

The Liberal party, however, "should not just talk about the situation but produce some ideas of our own to solve these problems."

He scored the Conservative administration for failing to bring down a budget "for a national accounting" during the present session and failing "even yet" to work out a written agreement with the U.S. on the decision last year to merge the RCAF into a continental air defence plan.

SENSIBLE STEP

"Unification seems to me to be a sensible step but they did it without consulting Parliament or without a written agreement as to how it will be worked out. They haven't got that agreement even yet. I can imagine how they would have screamed if we had done that."

Mr. Pearson said the 22-year record of the Liberal administration that ended last June was a good one, requiring no apologies.

BETTER RECORD

"But we must look to the future work and work for an even better record when we form the government again."

He blamed the Conservative government for a deterioration of "the climate of confidence" in Canada.

Mr. Pearson told the convention that the Liberal opposition will oppose measures in the House that are contrary to its principles or the welfare of the nation.

However, he warned, the Conservative government was trying to find a way out of its difficulties and would like to pin the responsibility for an election "and all the dislocation that involves" on the opposition.

He was presented with a collection of bow ties as "symbols of victory," following his speech.

WESTERN CANADA'S TOP ARMY CADET is Sgt. Edward Walker, 3405 Browning, 15-year-old Grade 10 Victoria High School student. He is pictured with some of trophies he won in Vernon during training last year. Presentation was made Friday night by Major Vincent Lilley, second-in-command of PPCLI.

Tougher Labor Policy in U.K.

By ADRIAN BALL

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative government appears today to have decided on a new and tough policy against British trade unions.

Newspaper and political pundits were saying the government tipped its hand with the rejection Sunday night by Labor Minister Ian MacLeod of a requested committee of inquiry to investigate a pay dispute within the 1,300,000-member Transport and General Workers Union.

The union asked for an inquiry into a claim for a 25 shilling-a-week ($3.50) pay raise for 53,000 London bus workers.

The state-run London Transport Executive rejected the pay claim but agreed to a committee of inquiry. MacLeod's rejection of the committee is regarded as a significant step—one that probably came from a cabinet decision.

TGWU secretary Frank Cousins said MacLeod himself had suggested the possibility of an inquiry into the wages of the whole road passenger transport industry.

He added: "This must be the first time in the history of British industrial relations when the two sides in a dispute have accepted a proposal from ministry officials aimed at seeking a solution—and find it turned down by the minister himself."

The Financial Times writes that MacLeod's move "will be regarded, in the trade union movement and outside, as the most significant indication so far of the toughness of the government's approach to wage claims."

The Liberal News Chronicle says the cabinet ordered MacLeod to kill the plan for a committee of inquiry. It adds that government and union leaders "face their most serious clash since the start of the Tory drive against pay claims."

"Dickens died in 1870 but his work is as alive today as it was then," says E. F. Waterson, branch president. Members of the Vancouver branch of the Fellowship will attend the banquet.

Marion

AFTER the moving van had gone, and the rest of the family had left in the truck, Marion stayed on alone for perhaps an hour. "I want to, dear," she told her husband. "I'll make better time in the car than you will following the van. This way, I'll be able to go over everything carefully, and see that nothing's been left behind. Besides, I'd like a little quiet time to myself after all this rush and bustle."

And the house was quiet. Too quiet, yet strangely loud with echoes now that carpets and pictures and curtains were gone, and all the rooms quite bare of furniture.

Somehow it wasn't like the familiar house at all. And yet the shell of the house was the same.

The worn lintel between the kitchen and the living room was there. And on the door jamb there was still the little knick that Bobby had made with his little penknife. For all the years of waxing and rubbing hadn't really filled the groove or hidden it.

Nearly 15 years they'd lived there, she thought, and wondered how long it would be before the other house really felt like home.

"That's the trouble with rooted types like me," she told herself. "Once you put down roots, and put them deep, it hurts so horribly to pull them up again."

She didn't want to leave the sunroom. That she knew. For the sunroom belonged especially to the days when the children were very young. There'd been the stage when she'd pushed the pram into the sunroom to let First Baby sleep there after his morning's bath. Then there'd been a stage of babies crawling in knitted leggings because it was fresh and lovely there when the winter windows were taken out. Toddlers had played there too, toddlers who screamed with fury sometimes because they wanted to be let out, and had learned enough to know that the door at the end opened on to the exciting garden.

Overflow visitors had slept there occasionally. And often, in the early days, Marion had thrown herself down on the sunroom couch, to read a little in the hurried snatches that are all a busy young mother has for reading. Poetry it had been mostly. It calmed her spirit, she used to tell her husband, who was apt to shake his head because he simply didn't understand the ways of women, and had never heard of nerves!

"I don't mind leaving some things," Marion said aloud as she wandered through the empty house. "For there are some things about this house that I never liked."

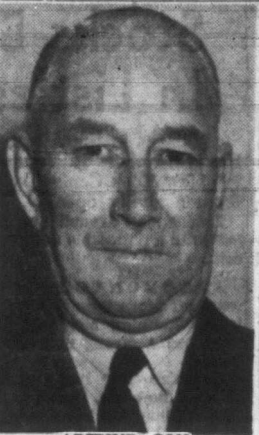

Mentally, she listed the good things—the walnut by the front verandah, the honeysuckle by the steps, the vine that made a pleasant summer shade across the little bedroom window.

She was sure she'd miss a winter sunrise view, and seeing the colors reflected in the field when it was flooded. It would be strange, too, not to see Arbutus Hill any more.

After the house, Marion wandered once around the garden and wished she'd taken some of her favorite treasures. But taking them hadn't seemed fair after they'd sold the place and signed the papers.

"Too honest," she murmured. "Too honest to be a real gardener. Real gardeners are the most dishonest bunch I know."

With that, she furtively took a shovel from the car, and dug up most of the aconites as well as several other little pets!

Parley Honors
50-Year Worker
For Liberals

By STAFF REPORTER

VANCOUVER—Victorian Arthur Cox was honored here Saturday by the B.C. Liberal Association for 50 years of work with the party.

Hon. R. W. Mayhew, who presented him with an inscribed silver cigarette case, said Mr. Cox had "served longer, worked harder, accomplished more and said less than anyone in this room" during his career.

"Every year with the Liberal party has been worthwhile," Mr. Cox, Vancouver Island area vice-president, told delegates to the association's first annual convention. "I'm quite prepared to carry on and impart to the young people what knowledge I have."

VANCOUVER—A 30-year-old law graduate was jeered by 200 delegates at the B.C. Liberal Association convention Saturday when he shouted his resignation from the party.

Norman Dent, of Vancouver, interrupted debate by declaring he would support the Conservative party.

He rushed out of the convention hall immediately. Outside, he told reporters that the party was "undemocratic" and said delegates to the convention were chosen in secret. A member of the party for nine years, he said he was not a delegate.

Liberals party spokesmen said he was a "frustrated young fellow" who had misguidedly illusions about becoming B.C. Liberal leader.

B.C. Liberals Reject Proposal
For Utility Public OwnershipBy JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—A proposed shift to the left was beaten down by the B.C. Liberal Association convention Saturday when it threw out a resolution urging public ownership of private utilities.

Former fisheries minister James Sinclair and Victoria MLA George Gregory led the fight against the Young Liberal resolution in a full-scale debate demanded by Mr. Sinclair.

It was defeated in a secret vote 134 to 29.

Mr. Sinclair attacked the resolution aimed at public ownership of B.C. Electric Co. and B.C. Telephone Co.—as "the very centre of Marxist dogma" which during the depression had led to formation of the CCF.

Although the Liberal party was not tied to a "dog-eat-dog" type of private enterprise, it recognized that society thrived only in those places "without the dead hand of a civil service bureaucracy" over them.

LAST RESORTS

Crown corporations such as TCA, CNR and Polymer Corporation were established only as last resorts, he said. The resolution would undermine the Liberal philosophy of a mixed economy which saw private and public ownership working side by side.

Mr. Gregory said B.C. would "not be as great as it is" if it had waited for the government to develop telephone and power systems. If expropriation of successful "risk investment" was carried out, then there would be also a moral obligation for the government to take over those companies that went bankrupt.

"As a Liberal, I could not sit in the legislature with my conscience if the party should adopt this resolution as part of its platform," he said.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Handbook for New Parents

LONDON—I've just been reading a best-seller and I find it fascinating. I'll admit it's a best-seller in a limited field, of no interest to those not directly interested in babies, but in England mothers (and their husbands, who cannot help being brought into this thing) swear by it as the best book for those coping with the newly born.

It's called The Care of Young Babies and it's by a London doctor called John Gibbens, who should think seriously about writing in the general field because he has the prime attribute of all good writers—simplicity.

It is a small book, less than 200 pages, and looks a puny little thing beside the expensively printed, profusely illustrated tomes I bought for my wife in Canada when she produced our two Canadian babies. Yet in this little book it's all there, everything you want to know.

What Gibbens has left out are the things a mother doesn't want to know. In his preface the doctor echoes the feelings she had about the North American books she had for young Mac and Robin—they scared the wits out of her, they were so medically gruesome.

"Most baby-rearing books," says Gibbens, "are so full of descriptions of dread diseases to which the flesh is heir that a young mother may be forgiven for feeling that the rearing of a young child is a dangerous and difficult task. Few stress the fact that bringing up a baby is, or should be, a grand job, a pleasure to both father and mother."

So throughout his book he stresses the joy to be got out of it and deals only with minor ailments.

This reasoning is sound because if there is anything seriously wrong with the baby a doctor will be called in, you won't treat it from a book. Reading gory details of possible baby illnesses merely gets the mother in a fine old state of worry.

Whatever you look up in the Gibbens' book, from Clothes ("Don't start by buying a lot of things for the baby, for you will probably get plenty of presents from friends and relations") to Circumcision ("Arguments given in favor of circumcision are not in the least convincing"), you will find him talking in a chatty, down-to-earth way, with the accent on the way nature goes about things not on newfangled theories.

I'd like to have had space for fuller quotes, on such things as fears of touching the fontanelle ("an old wives' tale") and lifting a baby from sleep ("give him a chance to stretch and yawn like all young animals while his brain gets into working order") but the best thing I can do is to suggest to any new father to get this English best-seller as a present for his wife.

Stocks Drift Down In Listless Trading

Shares in the Allegheny Corp., holding company for the late Robert R. Young's interests, soared today, while his New York Central stock held its ground, coming back from a shaky opening.

Trading, all around was listless with a noticeable downward drift.

AT TORONTO Industrials were off more than a point on index. Refining oils and pipelines had a strong majority of losses.

Canadian Tire had the best gain on the board, up 3 1/2 points to 86. Union Gas lost a point at 73 but all other changes were fractional.

Base metals dipped three-quarters of a point. Uranium was lower. Copper was mixed to lower in narrowrange trading while McIntyre pulled the gold index ahead with a 2 1/2-point advance to 75.

Western oils were quiet and price changes in the section were generally small.

Index changes: Industrials off 1.14 to 408.86; golds up .14 to 76.90; base metals off .68 to 147.97; western oils off .40 to 134.09.

AT NEW YORK shares of the late Robert R. Young's Allegheny Corp. zoomed following a favorable U.S. Supreme Court ruling. The stock market remained mixed late this afternoon.

New York Central stock held its ground despite the suicide of Young, the road's board chairman.

Gains and losses of fractions to a point were general for most key stocks.

After its opening, Centrol erased a loss, then showed scant change in later dealings.

Allegheny Corp., the holding company through which Young controlled Centrol, made huge gains after the high court order which blocked a long-delayed plan to issue new six per cent preferred stock. The issue was the last step in a program to eliminate from Allegheny's capital structure the stock dividend accrued on its 5 1/2 per cent preferred.

At noon, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 30 cents to $161.70. Rails were up 20 cents.

AT LONDON prices were mixed and buying lagged.

Gilt-edged securities were firm following newspaper forecasts of a possible reduction in the bank rate in line with cheap

Hairdressers to Parade Models Tonight at Sir James Douglas

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks presented a B.C. Hairdressers' Association trophy to Doris Mathison Sunday for the best entry in a Greater Victoria hair-dressing contest at the Empress Hotel.

Second prize went to Dezzo Hojnal and third to Doris Eley.

More than 126 local hairdressers attended the demonstration and forum, and 16 entered the contest.

All competitors will parade their models at 8 in Sir James Douglas School auditorium. Vancouver stylists also will prepare two models for presentation. Afterwards the public will be invited to submit written questions on hair problems to a panel of experts.

Proceeds from the show will be donated to the Greater Victoria Schools Orchestra. Interest in the Sunday demonstration was so high that a styling council, similar to one in Vancouver, will be established here; G. R. Matthews, general manager of the Hairdressers' Association of B.C., said.

Membership in the council will be based on skill and a desire to share hair-dressing techniques, he said. In addition members must be willing to stage free hair-dressing demonstrations for institutions raising money for charity.

Sunday's 16 competitors will form the nucleus of the council, Mr. Matthews said.

Camels Better Than New Wives

COPENHAGEN (UP)—A Danish radio amateur who got involved in a long-distance friendship with a Saudi Arabian prince has asked the prince to send him two camels—because he thinks they would be less trouble than the two additional wives the prince offered him.

The afternoon newspaper "B.T." reported today that the "ham"—who refused to allow his name to be used lest he have to explain the whole thing to his wife—had been holding long talks with Saudi Arabian Prince Talal.

The amateur told the paper that in the course of getting acquainted with the Saudi radio enthusiast, he remarked that the Danes generally make do with a single spouse.

Stagehands Protest CBC Lockout of 115

MONTREAL (CP)—Shop stewards representing production employees in all departments of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in Montreal were to meet today to decide whether to support 115 CBC stagehands who claim they have been illegally locked out.

The CBC Saturday and Sunday dismissed 55 stagehands who it says "refused to discharge part of the work assigned to them."

Representative Yvon Danseau of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees (IATSE) says all members of the stagehands department consider themselves dismissed. He says he sent a crew to work Saturday night and it was turned back at the door.

"Many others were refused entrance too," he said. "Commissionaires have received instructions from the CBC not to let any stage hands in. That's the reason why we claim this is an illegal lockout."

The CBC denied that it refused admission to any employees who wanted to go to work.

Venturi Greedy Fellow

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UP)—Ken Venturi, heir-apparent to the golfing crown worn by Sam Snead, Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson, said today his ambition is to "win 'em all."

The slender, 26-year-old San Francisco golfer, easy winner of the $15,000 Thunderbird Invitational here Sunday, moves tomorrow to Phoenix, Ariz., to compete there against the champions of all the tournaments this year: Billy Casper of the Bing Crosby; Frank Stranahan of the Los Angeles Open, and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of the Tijuana Open.

Kenny was 15 strokes under par in winning here with a 72-hole score of 269 and gave indication that he has reached the peak of his game that took him to championships in the Milwaukee and St. Paul Opens last year just after he became a pro.

BURKE RALLIED

Venturi first gained national fame while still an amateur when he led the field in the 1956 Masters by four strokes going into the final round. Then he shot a bad round and Jackie Burke, trailing by eight strokes, made a run at him and won by a single stroke.

Sunday the same thing was in progress here for a while. Burke started the day—nine strokes behind. After 14 holes, Jackie had cut the margin three strokes, but he cooled off, and Ken recovered to win easily. Victory was worth $15,000 in cash, plus a new car. Venturi had rounds of 70-63-66-70—269.

Tied for second, each collecting $875, were defending champion Jimmy Demaret and Gene Littler. They had 72-hole scores of 273. Demaret shooting a final round of 69, Littler 70.

Tied at 274 were Burke, Stan Leonard of Vancouver, and Don Fairfield, each collecting $566.66.

Marlene Blew Her Chances On 36th Hole

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UP)—Eight years of striving finally paid off in victory in the Doherty women's amateur golf tournament for May Ann Downey of Baltimore.

Miss Downey captured the crown Sunday with a one-up victory on the 37th hole over Marlene Stewart Streib, a former holder of the U.S. Canadian and British women's amateur titles.

To do it, Miss Downey twice had to rally from behind. On the 36th hole, victory was only 18 inches away from the cup for Mrs. Streib but she missed the putt.

On the extra hole, Miss Downey captured the title with an eight-foot putt for a birdie four after Mrs. Streib had missed a 12-foot shot by inches.

Vikings Find Alberni Team Easy Touch

Victoria College Vikings romped to a 76-43 win over Alberni Valley High School Chieftains in an exhibition basketball game at Victoria High School Saturday night.

Be Brouseau and Art Chiko set the scoring pace for the Western Canada junior champions, scoring 19 and 16 points, respectively.

At Esquimalt High School the Dockers dropped a 39-34 decision to Courtenay High and Oak Bay clipped Mount View, 44-30. The scorers:

Victoria College—Kowalyk 4, English 4, Chilo 16, Skilling 13, Patterson 8, Finch 2, McCullough 16, Brouseau 19, Showers 23, Total—76.

Alberni High—Littleton 5, Bishop 1, Patterson, Mahovic, Thomson 4, McKay 4, Kimco 7, Grant 5, Bergman 30, Dewy 3, Total—43.

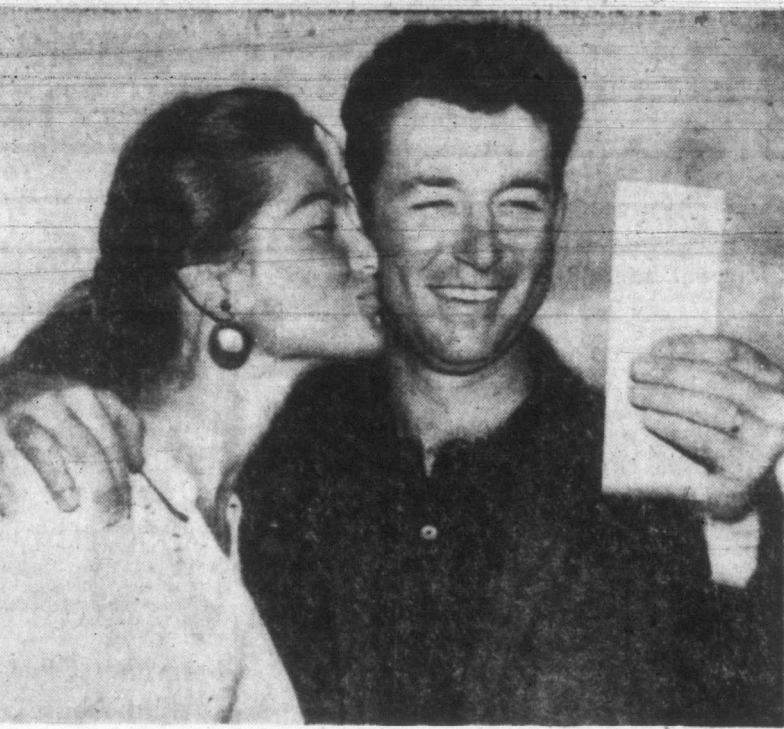

Oak Bay—S. Roberts 2, Ferguson 4, Kirkpatrick 8, Roberts 1, Hallett 2, Farnley 3, Sparks 1, Green 10, Johnston 12, McKay 9, Gould 44, Total—44.

Mount View—Black 7, May 7, Campbell 7, Chapman 3, Brown 10, Fiddler, Morrison 7, Grey, Total—30.

Courtenay—Becher 12, McKay 4, Potokovsk 13, Bulatovich 5, Monsee, Bell, Pozic, Vaton, Wychuk, McCullin, Miller 2, Evans, Total—39.

Esquimalt—McKinney 2, McFarlane, R. Mitchell 3, Mitchell, M. Mitchell 4, Nelson 16, Luzzo, McDonald, Millard 7, Chandler, Mason, McIntyre 2, Total—36.

INJURED Saturday while his Detroit mates were dropping a 53 verdict to Boston, Red Wing all-star Gord Howe is expected to be out of action for at least a month with rib injuries.

ALL THIS AND A CAR, TOO!

Happy Ken Venturi receives big kiss from wife, Conni, as he looks at cheque for $15,000 after winning $15,000 Thunderbird golf tournament at

Palm Springs Sunday. Venturi, who finished four strokes in front with 72-hole score of 269, also collected $4,500 automobile.—(AP wirephoto)

Send Boston Bruins into each game with only five minutes to play and chances are they'd be leading the National Hockey League today.

Especially if Jerry Toppazzini and Don McKenney were playing the way they have in recent games.

Toppazzini and McKenney were the scorers when the Bruins played with three goals in the last five minutes Saturday to defeat Detroit Red Wings 5-3.

McKenney scored one goal and assisted on another in the last five minutes Sunday when Boston tied Toronto Maple Leafs 3-3.

In other games Saturday, Montreal Canadiens beat Chicago Black Hawks 2-1 and Barry Cullen scored three goals as Toronto beat New York Rangers 7-1.

In Sunday's games, Detroit upset Montreal 4-2 and Chicago edged New York 4-3.

MOVE NEAR DETROIT

The fourth-place Bruins, apparently solid again after a lengthy slump, moved to within a point of third-place Detroit and two of second-place New York as a result of the three-point week-end. Toronto is two points behind.

Wings suffered another loss Saturday when all-star right winger Gordie Howe suffered possible rib fractures in the first period when he was sandwiched by two Bruins. It was not known how long he would be out.

TWO GOALS DOWN

Boston was losing 3-1 to Toronto at 16:2 of the third period Sunday. McKenney scored his fourth goal in three games on a pass from Toppazzini and with one second left, started a play that resulted in Leo Laline tying the score. Goalie Harry Lumley was off the ice at the time.

Ron Stewart scored twice for Toronto and Gary Aldcorn once. Doug Mohns was the other Boston scorer.

Delvecchio was back at work Sunday when the Wings, missing Howe, defeated Montreal on Detroit ice for the first time this season.

Delvecchio scored twice again for 13 goals this season. Forbes Kennedy and Johnny Wilson also scored for Detroit. Bernie Geoffrion scored his 27th, and Henri Richard his 21st for Montreal.

The Hawks bounced back Sunday and broke a 17-game jinx by goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley and the Rangers to defeat New York 4-3. It was the first victory for Chicago over New York at Chicago Stadium since Jan. 30, 1955.

If Howie Was Shorter Pat Would Be Happier

Record Turnout Watches Flyers Squeeze by Cougars

By DOUG PEDEEN
Edmonton 5, Cougars 3

If Howie Yanosik was a bit shorter, Pat Egan might be a happier man today.

The Victoria Cougar coach wouldn't care if the five-eight Edmonton defenceman sprouted into a six-footer today, but for a fleeting instant in Saturday's Western Hockey League game at Memorial Arena, Pat would have willingly parted with a week's pay for a chance to trim a couple of inches off Howie's arms.

Proving once again that the man who makes the key play in a hockey game is often lost in the rush to applaud goal scorers, Yanosik plucked probable victory away from the Cougars and helped the Flyers over a rough spot on the trail that led to a 5-3 Edmonton triumph.

And he needed every one of his inches to do it.

Deadlocked, 2-2, after two periods, the Cougars were hammering at the Edmonton goal in the opening minutes of the third session. Gordie Wilson and Tom McCarthy broke through and goalie Dennis Rigin had to move quickly to block McCarthy's close-in drive from the left side.

The puck dropped in front of an open net and Wilson moved in for the clinch shot. But Yanosik, hustling from behind, reached out and got the tip of his stick under Wilson's weapon and lifted it over the puck.

With McCarthy and Wilson trapped at the Edmonton end, Yanosik led a return rush and McCarthy sliced the deficit to a single goal by tipping in Egan's blue-line blazer and the Cougars made a last-ditch effort to force overtime, pulling goalie Emile Francis with 65 seconds remaining when they got a facoff in the Edmonton zone.

Colin Kilburn, the main reason why 5,433 customers—a record Memorial Arena hockey crowd—paid their way into the arena, drove the puck toward the empty net. It just missed, bouncing off the net frame on the right side. Although McCarthy attempted to lift the puck into centre ice, Flyers kept it in and coach Tony Leswick made no mistake when he got a chance at the open goal.

It was an entirely satisfactory evening for Kilburn, playing his only Victoria game against the club he was coaching and managing earlier in the season.

Given a fine welcome from the fans, Kilburn opened the scoring while Raglan was serving a high-sticking penalty and received credit for an assist on Leswick's tally. He also picked up four penalties, two of them for tiffs with Raglan.

However, most of the fans were pulling for a Cougar victory and they saved their biggest cheer for Egan when he evened the count at 1-1 early in the second period while Kilburn was sitting out a penalty for tripping Wilson.

Egan, claiming icing should have been called on Kilburn's last-minute shot, drew misconduct and game misconduct penalties as he roughed linesman Toby Brown while heatedly protesting a decision that the puck had travelled through the crease and thus could not be icing.

Fortunate to be only one goal behind after collecting five penalties in the first 10 minutes, the Cougars were an impressive club for the next 35 minutes of the fast, exciting argument and seldom looked like they deserved to be 22 points behind third-place Seattle in the WHL's Coast Division.

Although they mixed enough mistakes in with their good efforts to pave the way for two Edmonton goals, the Cats would probably have won except for some brilliant shot-stopping by Rigin and Yanosik's key play.

Lucky when Eddie Dorohoy lost control of the puck after taking him out of position on a first-period break, Rigin came up with several tremendous stops in his total of 32 saves, particularly against McCarthy, Wilson and Bud Syverson.

Francis, who included an almost unbelievable leg-pad save against Chuck Holmes among his 27 stops, also turned in a starry effort.

Four-Title Spree For Rickie Gough

Favored stars came through as expected Saturday at Club Sirocco as Art Ngai retained his Victoria city table tennis singles championship and Nancy Craig made a successful comeback to wrest the ladies' singles crown from May Wong.

It was a family affair in the men's singles final as Art faced brother Eddie and squeezed out a 19-21, 21-15, 21-8, 25-23 victory.

Gough and Ray Dawson captured the men's doubles crown from Ray Greenwood and Hobbs by scores of 21-18, 21-12, 21-18, 21-19, in one of the best matches of the night.

Hobbs evened accounts with Gough by beating him out for the junior singles title.

Gough in turn fought right back with a win over Dennis Beckwith for the juvenile singles championship and George Clark fell to W. Bowden in the seniors singles.

The Shawnigan Lake third team was blanked, 8-0.

Shawnigan Lake's Jaunt Successful

Shawnigan Lake Boys' School rugby squads compiled a .666 average against Vancouver's St. George's School Saturday, winning two of three matches against their rivals at Vancouver.

Ralph Vandersluys and Barry McAlpine paced the Shawnigan first team's 233 win with a total of 17 points between them, while Shawnigan's under-20-pounders gained a 12-11 edge over their Vancouver opposition.

The Shawnigan Lake third team was blanked, 8-0.

Flyers Whistling All the Way Home

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Flyers, after a successful stint against Coast teams of the Western Hockey League, are heading for home today to prepare for a new assault on the top spot of the league's Prairie Division.

The Flyers must be more than a little pleased with their Coast tour. Their two wins, one tie and one loss left them only two points behind the leading Winnipeg Warriors in the Prairies.

Both the Flyers and Colin Kilburn, the former Victoria manager, ended their tour on a happy note. Kilburn followed up a goal and an assist against his ex-teammates Saturday with a brace Sunday, when Edmonton defeated Seattle Americans, 5-1.

Flyer coach Tony Leswick also scored two against Seattle while Jerry Melnyk picked up one. Don Chitupka, with two Bill McFarland and Val Foytne, scored for the Americans.

Seattle Americans' loss Sunday was their third in as many days. After losing 3-1 to New Westminster Royals, Friday they were badly beaten by the Royals again Saturday, 5-1.

Hugh Barlow scored two goals to lead the way for New Westminster in the Saturday game. Gord Fashaway, Art Jones and Dick Van Impe added other goals while Gord Sinclair counted Seattle's lone goal.

On the Prairies, Saturday Calgary Stampeders defeated Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals 5-1, netminder Lucien Dechene was swamped by the Stamps. F handled 41 shots, compared with only 17 by Calgary's Al Rollins.

Fred Hucul's two goals were backed by singles from Wayne Hicks, Barry Ross and S. Finney. Ray Ross was the on-goaltender for the Regals, who will be home at Saskatoon for a return game against the Stamps tonight.

City Youth Drowns at Shawnigan As Gallant Rescue Attempt Fails

Cowichan School Trustee In 'Real Act of Heroism'

A boyish love of play on the water proved fatal Saturday to eight-year-old Kenneth Daryl Thomas of Victoria who tumbled from a log and drowned in rain-swollen Shawnigan Creek at its outfall from Shawnigan Lake.

He was the son of Mrs. James Frederick Thomas, a widow, of 1742 Pembroke Street.

A gallant rescue attempt that failed just by inches made the drowning doubly tragic.

TOY BOAT

Kenneth had a toy boat, and it is believed he climbed on a floating log while sailing the toy. He was next seen by Bert Larmand, a Shawnigan Lake youngster, riding on the log in the current and calling for help. As he called he slipped from the log, and immediately young Bert ran to Mason's General Store for assistance.

The proprietor, Cowichan School District No. 65 trustee Pat Mason, ran to the creek and dived in fully clothed. The young victim was about 50 feet ahead of him, and sank below the surface as he neared the railway bridge crossing the creek.

TOUCHED HIM

"I could see him rolling on the bottom and I dived down for him and touched him with my foot," Mr. Mason said. "But I just couldn't catch him."

"I was worried for a while myself," he said, "and was praying 'help me, protect me.' I was getting pretty cold. The current carried me over to the bank, and I pulled myself out."

Rev. G. Howard Turpin, a witness, called Mr. Mason's attempt a "real act of heroism." Mrs. Turpin, who saw the boy swept down stream, estimated Mr. Mason swam 250 feet in trying to reach the boy.

IN DEEP WATER

Search for the body began immediately and it was Mr. Mason, using a device for seeing under water, who spotted the boy at 3 p.m. in deep water 100 feet beyond the railway bridge.

He and Eric Clay, of Shawnigan Lake, made the search from a boat that was lowered down the creek by a rope and steadied by ropes to the shore. The log on which the victim had been riding was found one-half mile farther on, with his toy boat still attached.

50 SEARCH

About 50 persons took part in the search, and a bulldozer and wrecking truck were on hand to break up a log jam in the creek if necessary.

An inquest will be held in Duncan at 7 tonight.

Survivors include Kenneth's mother, a sister, Brenda, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clement, 1742 Pembroke, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomas, 1240 Richardson.

Seamen Sent To Jail for Ship Damage

Term Meshes With Freighter Sailing

Three British seamen were sentenced to seven days in Oakalla Prison today after pleading guilty to a charge of committing wilful damage aboard the British freighter Baron Inverclyde in Victoria Jan. 11.

The trio—John Burns, 19; Patrick Sales, 20; and Frederick Phipps, 24; all of London—pleaded guilty to committing damage in excess of $50 to the ship's furnishings.

They were sentenced by Judge J. B. Clearhue in Victoria County Court. Before passing sentence the judge asked when the Baron Inverclyde would be sailing for England. He was told the ship would be sailing from Vancouver, Feb. 3 or 4—about the time the three men will complete their sentence. It left Victoria last week.

The seamen were committed to County Court after a preliminary hearing in police court before Magistrate H. C. Hall.

AT DRYDOCK

A shipboard disturbance which resulted in the charge was understood to have been precipitated by dissatisfaction over conditions aboard the ship, at that time moored at the government drydock at Esquimalt for repairs.

In police court a Crown application to withdraw a wilful damage charge and substitute a new charge was rejected by Magistrate Hall.

Nature of the requested new charge was not disclosed. The magistrate dismissed a separate charge against Sales of assaulting the second engineer aboard the freighter.

AS SONG SAYS:

It Might As Well Be Spring!

Even weatherman Bill Mackie admits that it might as well be spring.

Daffodils and tulips are bursting from the ground, robins are chirping of summer—and Sunday the temperature in Victoria rose to a cheery 48 degrees.

On the same Sunday last year Victoria was coated with five inches of snow and the temperature meandered from 18 to 31 degrees.

The average temperature here covering the first 26 days in January this year was 44.5 degrees, Mr. Mackie said, almost six degrees above the norm.

A cold snap is "still possible," he said, "but there's no indication of one yet. It looks like we're in for an open winter."

Sports Car Fans In 8-Hour Loop To Port Renfrew

Members of the British Sports Touring Club, driving in 12 cars, made a loop trip Sunday from Victoria to Port Renfrew and return in a comfortable eight hours, including stops.

The party met at the Shawnigan Lake cutoff on the Malahat for the drive west of Shawnigan Lake and down the San Juan River valley to Port Renfrew. Return was by way of Jordan River and Sooke, to make a round trip of upwards of 140 miles.

The Shawnigan Lake-Port Renfrew road was reported solid, but with potholes and one minor washout that did not impede traffic. The Port Renfrew-Jordan River section had a "washboard" surface with a few soft patches.

"LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON" really applies in the Prior family of Victoria. George Prior, who turned 17 last week, was sworn into regular army in Ottawa day after his birthday. His father (at left) is WO1 George Prior, 39, now stationed in Ottawa after 22 years in army. Young George served in militia with 41st Field Survey Squadron, RCE. He'll be sent to RCEME unit at Barriefield, Ont.

Victorian Heads Governor's House

Commander Francis J. D. Pemberton, 52, of Victoria, has been appointed comptroller of the Governor General Massey's household in Ottawa, it was announced today.

He succeeds Lt.-Col. Locke Malkin as the household's financial administrator.

Commander Pemberton was engaged in business in Victoria before he joined the Canadian Navy in 1940. He served as liaison officer between British, American and Canadian staffs in New York after a period of escort duty on the North Atlantic.

He spent 10 years as naval attaché in Washington, the Hague and Copenhagen and for the past two years has been on the staff of the director of naval intelligence in Ottawa.

Esquimalt Tops V.I. In Road Expenditure

Provincial highways department spent $2,308,710 in Esquimalt riding during 1956-57 fiscal year to make it tops on Vancouver Island.

Total spending by the department during the year was $84,147,002, according to the annual report tabled in the legislature.

Almost two-thirds of the money spent in Esquimalt was for new construction of the Malahat highway.

Yale constituency topped all ridings in the province with $7,754,567. Most of this was for Trans-Canada highway work in the Fraser Canyon.

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi's Kamloops riding was second at $5,322,004.

Other island ridings: Cowichan—Newcastle, $1,331,186; Comox $1,235,215; Nanaimo-Islands, $785,953; Alberni $427,596; Saanich $318,558.

Suspects Held In Ransacking Of City Home

Two men were picked up by city police early today in connection with ransacking of one home and theft from another in the Rockland Avenue area.

The men have been charged with vagrancy pending further investigation. Miss Gudrun Marquardt, 18, of 705 Robella, told police she awakened at 4 a.m. to see two men or boys shining flashlights down the hall. She called out and they ran from the house.

At 5:20 a.m., W. H. Lawson, 1302 Rockland, said two prowlers entered his bedroom window and shone a light in his face. They told him to lie still, then took his wallet containing $11, a pair of old trousers and his car keys.

Two men were picked up shortly after by city police about two blocks from the Lawson home.

Dairies Deny Dictating Retail Prices

Victoria's four major dairies are not dictating retail prices of milk in stores, a spokesman said today.

He denied a report in which two unidentified storekeepers had claimed they were told to continue charging 24c for a quart of standard milk, after the dairies reduced their wholesale price from 23 to 22c a quart last week.

Prices for milk in Greater Victoria stores range from 23 to 25c a quart following the reduction.

Talks Continue In Pulp Strike

Negotiations in the 11-week-old pulp strike continued today in Vancouver between labor and management representatives following weekend meetings.

No immediate comment was made by either side on how far the negotiations have progressed.

ASK The TIMES

Q—So many people seem to think that artificial limbs are made of cork but they are not. How is it they are called cork legs?—A. J. I.

A—Originally artificial limbs were made of wood, called peg legs. This used to throw the poor legless chap off balance, so the wooden peg-legs were filled with cork to lighten the weight. Thus the name. Today, aluminum is mostly used and attempts are made continually to try and achieve an exact balance between the "non-operative" limb and the original.

THEY TRIED . . .

Hero of desperate attempt to save Kenneth Thomas from drowning in Shawnigan Creek was Pat Mason, left, merchant and school trustee. Bert Larmand, right, gave alarm of impending tragedy.—(Flett Studio)

Overheard over the weekend . . .

"I'd like to take advantage of that toothpaste company's offer of two giant tubes . . . but we don't have any giants at our house."

P. A. Gagliardi is a great man . . . who else could have persuaded the Times to print the word "peripatetic" . . . did you hear Mr. Gagliardi is replacing Pierre Radisson on the TV? . . . his show will be called "Have gone, will travel . . ."

Wonder what would happen if Drew Pearson were assigned to write an article about the leader of the Liberal party in Canada? Would he start out by having a Pearson to Pearson interview?

Well, at least you can't say she married him for his money. She got it BEFORE they were married.

A fighter? You call that palooka a fighter? Why his last time out he was paid to throw the fight in the fifth but couldn't last past the third.

I don't believe for one minute the province of B.C. is going broke. After all, if B.C. was short of cash, would it spend all that money to decorate the legislative buildings?

I can't understand why more people don't leave their cars at home and ride the bus. It would make parking so much easier, especially for people like me who need their cars during the day.

I can remember when you could get a full-size five-cent candy bar for only a dime.

Don't kid yourself about the government planning to spring an election this spring. You think they want to be unemployed, too?

And that's all I overheard over the weekend. But then, it was a pretty weak weekend.

Folding Clothes Hangers
Make Packing... a Cinch!

By PENNY SAVER

This is about the time of year when people start to plan trips to other countries. With this in mind, I've been thinking of how to ease packing worries... and here is one idea! It's a folding coat hanger constructed of wood, complete with clothes brushes attached to each arm! At $1.25 each, a set of these clothes hangers would make a useful and thoughtful "bon voyage" gift for any globe trotter! They are compact for packing too... and they're light!

On another counter I found a collection of stiffened elastic hangers folded neatly into compact little taffeta cases. It struck me that these hangers would not only be practical in packing, but also to carry in one's purse.

Drop in to this shop and look at the collection of gadgets. The elastic hanger costs 98 cents.

Still in the same shop, I wandered along to the jewelry counter. I found the prettiest and gayest imitation mother of pearl plastic bracelet and earring set. The bracelet was wide

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Her Friends Have Changed
Since Making Resolutions

Practically everyone makes new year resolutions. It would be interesting to know what the average length of life is for them—the resolutions, not the people.

I hardly recognize my friends since the first of the year. Some who smoked like chimneys now are biting their nails instead. Others have lost mustaches while some are growing beards. Still more have resolved not to fight at bridge, so instead of the usual ruckus there is stony silence.

A few are limping about because they are doing exercises for the first time in a long while. One has given up desserts and for the first time in her life chews gum. Still another has a blister on her finger because she resolved to catch up with and be better about her correspondence. One feminine friend who always has dressed very smartly but in black exclusively, appeared the other night in a flaming red dress, and on and on it goes!

New Year's resolutions are good for us. They make us think. Here are a few of the things my friends resolved. Why not check yourself against this list and see how many of the same resolves you made?

1. To lose those extra pounds.
2. To exercise daily, for health and beauty.
3. To be more careful about grooming.
4. To take rest periods and avoid so much rush.
5. To always put the car key in the same place.
6. To stop getting excited about non-essentials.
7. To remember that teenage period is a period which both parents and children have to go through but that it is temporary pain and will pass. Therefore, to remember that the main thing is to stay close to them. In a few years the gap will narrow.
8. To be more tolerant.
9. To laugh more and have more fun and stop being grim and tense about things.
10. Not to waste glands in ridiculous ways such as sensitivity and envy.

The important thing is to make your resolutions for a reasonably short time. Anyone can stick to a determination for a definite length of time. After that, the results will be so rewarding that you will wish to continue.

NO CANCER CURE

Hoxsey
Claims
Spurned

It was learned today a B.C. government-appointed committee has rejected claims of the Hoxsey Clinic of Dallas, Tex., that it has a cure for internal cancer.

The report of the committee, which was headed by Dr. James M. Mather, professor of public health, will be presented to the legislature today.

The members of the six-man committee visited the Dallas clinic—now known as the Taylor clinic—last July, examining and interrogating patients.

The committee's rejection of the claim that a cancer cure had been found backs findings by the American Medical Association and the U.S. government health department.

Aerobees Up
85-90 Miles

PORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—Scientists fired two rockets 85 and 90 miles into the air here Monday in the fourth and fifth launchings of 1958 in International Geophysical Year tests.

The launchings were the second and third in just over 13 hours and brought to five the number completed in the last three days.

ISTANBUL (AP)—One bomb blasted a warehouse of the U.S. Embassy compound and another shattered a private bookshop near the U.S. information centre in Ankara Sunday.

The explosions occurred 11 hours before the opening of a four-day Baghdad Pact conference.

Thieves Take

MONTREAL (CP)—Approximately $2,300 in cash and an undetermined amount in savings bonds were stolen during the weekend from a trust company and a small bank.

The robbery occurred at La Societe Nationale de Fiducie, a trust company, and its banking subsidiary, La Caisse Nationale d'Economie.

U.S. to Shield
5 Pact NationsGreat Mobile Power to Thwart
Any Invasion Staged by Reds

ANKARA, Turkey (CP)—State Secretary Dulles told leaders of the five Baghdad Pact nations today the United States will support them with "mobile power of great force" against any Communist invasion.

Dulles' keynote speech at the opening of the Middle East-alliance ministerial council meeting emphasized that any potential aggressor "knows in advance that his losses from aggression would far exceed any possible gains." But, he said, "if perchance deterrence fails" the United States will contribute its mobile power to save the people of the Middle East.

Dulles is attending a pact conference for the first time since the alliance was formed in 1955. Others attending included Britain's Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd, Pakistani Premier Feroz Khan Noon, Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes and former Iraqi premier Nuri Al Said.

Dulles said the United States will continue to provide economic aid to individual members of the pact.

Lloyd told the conference in his opening statement: "If the Russians now have a real desire to achieve a relaxation of tension, this is because by our alliances we have defended resolutely the principles and interests vital to us."

"However, our constant aim must always be to reduce East-West tension and to seek agreement with the Soviet Union wherever and whenever this can be achieved without surrender of our vital interests."

Commenting on Russia's call for an early summit conference of world leaders, Lloyd said the level of a conference is not as important as "concrete and sensible results."

Lending weight to the economic aspects of the meeting were reports that the Moslem members—Turkey, Iran, Iraq and Pakistan—were ready to criticize the scale of Western aid programs in the Middle East as being inadequate to meet Russia's challenges.

Another internal matter was expected to be an Iraqi request for pact support for the Arab demand that Israel be pushed back to the frontiers recommended by the United Nations in 1947.

Lloyd and Dulles were reported intending to say they are not planning any new initiatives on the Palestine question but prefer instead to support any moves undertaken by the U.N. Meanwhile, Dulles' presence at the council meeting for the first time is regarded as a symbol of American support for the pact.

Fiscal Year Estimates
Need Time

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today it will be a "little while yet" before the governments' estimates of expenditures for the new fiscal year are tabled in the Commons.

He said also, after a morning cabinet session, that he expects to announce some appointments Tuesday after another meeting of his colleagues.

He gave no indication what jobs the appointments may cover.

The government hopes to prologue the current session of Parliament Friday and there has been speculation that Mr. Diefenbaker may call a general election soon afterwards.

However, there have been reports that the new estimates, expected to reach a record of $5,500,000,000 or more, would be tabled early in a new session of Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker's casual remark concerning the new estimates may indicate that the minority government plans to proceed with a new session and bring in the estimates before dissolving Parliament for a new election.

U.S. Railways
In Desperate Plight?

NEW YORK (BUP)—Some insiders said today that the suicide of Robert R. Young means the railroad industry of North America is in a really desperate situation.

The insiders said the most revealing fact is that New York Central stock is selling now for only $13.50 a share. Young paid an average of $22 a share for it in his dramatic proxy struggle to wrest control of the Central from the slipping grip of the Vanderbilt clan.

Cowboys, Indian Game Apparent
Cause of Mishap

A 14-year-old Belmont Park boy, apparently playing cowboys and Indians, strangled to death Sunday at the end of a rope in an arbutus tree.

The boy, Danny Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fraser, 469 Thetis Crescent, was found at 8:30 p.m. hanging from the tree 200 yards from his home.

He had been the object of a 40-man hunt in tangled brush and rocks from dusk Sunday.

Immediate efforts to revive him were unsuccessful and he was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The boy apparently had been playing with an 18-foot length of 1/4-inch rope which was found tied to a limb, passed over other branches and cinched around his neck.

The RCMP at Colwood had talked to several boys who had been playing with the youth, but so far haven't been able to piece together exactly how the tragedy occurred.

The spot where Danny Fraser

the body was found is known as a favorite hangout for boys. Indications pointed to accidental hanging.

Although Danny had been playing with six other youngsters Sunday afternoon, it appeared he was alone when the hanging took place.

The group of boys was last seen together about 3 p.m. They were playing in an area overlooking Esquimalt Lagoon on the Cavendish Estate, adjoining a fenced area between Royal Roads and the naval housing site.

Danny was seen on a raft with three boys paddling in the lagoon. Later they came ashore some went off with the others to play ball, some went for a hike in the bush and other stayed to play.

Danny was last seen alive by his companions at about 4 p.m. His parents reported him missing after he failed to come home by 7 p.m.

Police, Cadets Engage in Search

Colwood police, playing a hunch, immediately asked for aid from the naval fire station at Belmont and Canadian Services College at Royal Roads, then began dragging lagoon waters.

The college turned out about 30 cadets, two of whom finally located the boy's body.

The search was in charge of Const. Gordon Irvine and Const. William McKenzie. With cadets were Royal Roads Commandant Col. Percy Stewart Cooper, and they used one of the college cutters on the lagoon.

With lights from the college, fire station and RCMP detachment, the men began combing the bush.

Scene of the tragedy was parallel to a Belmont Park sewerage line road in an area enclosed by a 10-foot steel fence. Another fence, made of wire and broken down in places, had to be crossed before the fatal tree could be reached.

It protruded over a broken outcropping of moss-covered slippery rocks upon which the boys climbed. Several branches could be reached from the rocks.

It was suggested by police Danny could have been playing with the rope in such a way as to become tangled in it, then slipped off the rocks.

When found, the body was nearly touching ground with knees slightly bent.

The boy was wearing a green and brown tartan windbreaker, trousers, shoes and socks. Around his shoulders and neck were draped large pieces of cloth, one black, the other

Turkish Cypriots,
U.K. Troops Clash

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP)—British authorities today placed a curfew on the Turkish sector of Nicosia following day-long fighting between Turkish Cypriots and British forces.

The hand-to-hand fighting broke out this morning and Ataturk Square, the centre of the Turkish sector of Nicosia, was turned into a battlefield.

Three persons were reported killed in the clashes. British policemen and soldiers as well as demonstrators were injured.

The demonstrators, chanting slogans for the partition of Cyprus, clashed with British soldiers and Turkish mobile police who attempted to divert them from a march on the Greek area of the island capital city.

Charges of tear gas and baton charges failed to disperse the crowd. The slogan-chanting young Turks, many of the students, bombarded with bottles and stones police squares barricaded in a headquarter facing Ataturk Square.

271 Dead or Missing
In Japanese Sinkings

TOKYO (AP)—Two hundred and seventy-one persons were reported dead or missing today in 21 Japanese shipping accidents caused by two days of storms. Topping the list was the loss of a ferryboat, with 170 persons on board, in the Inland Sea.

The Japanese coast guard reported 11 other vessels, including fishing craft, were sunk; five are missing; two capsized and two washed away. Bodies of 11 persons have been recovered in these cases; others are missing. An extensive air and sea search continued.

IMPROVISED SAYS PEARSON

WINNIPEG (CP)—The new tax-sharing program announced Saturday by the federal government will benefit the provinces but it is improvised legislation, the opposition leader, Lester Pearson, said Sunday night.

Mr. Pearson said in an interview that the plan to increase the provincial share of tax revenue for one year should not have been instituted without consulting the provinces.

The Liberal leader was to go to Brandon today to address the Chamber of Commerce.

Party Chiefs To Meet CCF Caucus

The B.C. provincial executive of the CCF will hold a meeting with the CCF caucus in the Legislative Buildings next Saturday at 9 a.m.

On Friday at 7 p.m. the executive will attend a banquet given by the Esquimalt and CCF associations in the Douglas Hall.

A. J. Rhodes will be in the chair and one of the chief speakers will be Robert Strachan, CCF leader.

Kadar Quits As Premier, Remains Boss

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Premier Janos Kadar offered his resignation to Hungary's parliament today, but he will continue to run the country's Red regime as first secretary of the Communist party.

Kadar in a 90-minute speech which was applauded repeatedly proposed that his 72-year-old first deputy, Ferenc Muehnick, step up to the premiership. The vote on the proposals is expected Tuesday, with approval a virtual certainty.

Kadar said he also would remain in the cabinet.

Kadar was the only leader in the Soviet bloc still holding the two key posts of premier and party first secretary.

He became premier in November, 1956, when Russian troops returned to Budapest and crushed the revolt against Soviet domination. Before that he held key posts in the brief anti-Russian government headed by Premier Imre Nagy. He also took over party leadership during the revolt.

Counter-Blow Threat In Venezuela Fades

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—The threat of a counter-blow against Venezuela's revolutionary government eased today. After a night of tension, the ruling junta appeared to have re-established order.

Reports that diehard supporters of ex-dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez were preparing to move against the junta put Venezuela on edge Sunday night.

New Scouting Plan Backed By Esquimalt

First step in decentralization of Victoria district scouting has taken place in Esquimalt where group committees have accepted the plan in principle.

Charles Medley, assistant district commissioner, will call a further meeting next week.

Victoria district commissioner Lt.-Col. Reginald Girard proposed the appointment of three further assistant district commissioners as a major step in the decentralization plan.

The names proposed were W. H. Gibson, D. F. Mason and Mr. Medley. Selection goes to the provincial scouting authority for official appointment.

In Esquimalt, Gerald Steick was named area badge secretary.

In his first speech at the grass roots level since election as new Liberal leader, Mr. Pearson outlined the issues he will take to the voters when the election is called.

The 200 delegates, which earlier gave Mr. Pearson a solid vote of confidence as new leader, rose in standing ovations before and after his speech.

Mr. Pearson said that the announcement Saturday of increases in provincial shares of the federal tax rental agreement "indicates we can expect an election will come soon—and I really mean any day now."

NO SOLUTIONS

He said the government could not be blamed for the deteriorating employment and foreign trade pictures but "it is fair to point out to the people that they have not brought out any solutions," he said.

The Liberal party, however, "should not just talk about the situation but produce some ideas of our own to solve these problems."

He scored the Conservative administration for failing to bring down a budget "for a national accounting" during the present session and "failing even yet" to work out a written agreement with the U.S. on the decision last year to merge the RCAF into a continental air defence plan.

SENSIBLE STEP

"Unification seems to me to be a sensible step but they did it without consulting Parliament or without a written agreement as to how it will be worked out. They haven't got that agreement even yet. I can imagine how they would have screamed if we had done that."

Mr. Pearson said the 22-year record of the Liberal administration that ended last June was a good one, requiring no apologies.

BETTER RECORD

"But we must look to the future work and work for an even better record when we form the government again."

He blamed the Conservative government for a deterioration of "the climate of confidence" in Canada.

Mr. Pearson told the convention that the Liberal opposition will oppose measures in the House that are contrary to its principles or the welfare of the nation.

However, he warned, the Conservative government was trying to find a way out of its difficulties and would like to pin the responsibility for an election "and all the dislocation that involves" on the opposition.

He was presented with a collection of bow ties as "symbols of victory," following his speech.

WESTERN CANADA'S TOP ARMY CADET is Sgt. Edward Walker, 3405 Browning, 15-year-old Grade 10 Victoria High School student. He is pictured with some of trophies he won in Vernon during training last year. Presentation was made Friday night by Major Vincent Lilley, second-in-command of PPCLI.

Tougher Labor Policy in U.K.

By ADRIAN RALL

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative government appears today to have decided on a new and tough policy against British trade unions.

Newspaper and political pundits were saying the government tipped its hand with the rejection Sunday night by Labor Minister Ian MacLeod of a requested committee of inquiry to investigate a pay dispute within the 1,300,000-member Transport and General Workers Union.

The union asked for an inquiry into a claim for a 25-shilling-a-week ($3.50) pay raise for 33,000 London bus workers.

The states-run London Transport Executive rejected the pay claim but agreed to a committee of inquiry.

MacLeod's rejection of the committee is regarded as a significant step—one that probably came from a cabinet decision.

TGWU secretary Frank Cousins said MacLeod himself had suggested the possibility of an inquiry into the wages of the whole road passenger transport industry.

He added: "This must be the first time in the history of British industrial relations when the two sides in a dispute have accepted a proposal from ministry officials aimed at seeking a solution—find it, turned down by the minister himself."

The Financial Times writes that MacLeod's move "will be regarded, in the trade union movement and outside, as the most significant indication so far of the toughness of the government's approach to wage claims."

The Liberal News Chronicle says the cabinet ordered MacLeod to kill the plan for a committee of inquiry. It adds that government and union leaders "face their most serious clash since the start of the Tory drive against pay claims."

Members of the Vancouver branch of the Fellowship will attend the banquet.

Mac Readies Reply To Bulganin Letter

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan, currently on a tour of five eastern Commonwealth countries, will reply to the latest letter from Russian Premier Bulganin in the next week or so, Alan Noble, minister of state for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today. Noble said the government is "certainly agreeable to a summit meeting." But, he added, there must be some agreement on what is to be discussed and where, when and by whom it will be discussed.

Aneurin Bevan, Labor party foreign affairs spokesman, said his group agrees on the need for preparation. As for an agenda, Bulganin's letters contained sufficient proposals for this.

Egypt-Syria Merger Into Federation Due

CAIRO (AP) — The merger of Egypt and Syria into a single state is reported imminent. The newspaper Al Ahrar said President Nasser and Syrian President Kuwatly would announce the union today.

Senior Egyptian and Syrian leaders proclaimed the advantages of the proposed federation, and the Cairo press gave it full play. Public emphasis on the plan apparently was timed to take the edge off the opening of the Baghdad-Paet conference today in Ankara, Turkey.

Al Ahrar said Cairo would be the capital, the federation's name would be "The United Arab State" and there would be one government, one parliament and one army.

A plebiscite will be held in Egypt and Syria on the proposed union, Al Ahrar said.

PICTURES WITH JOHN D. TORY ELECTION POSE

OTTAWA (CP) — Government supporters in parliament are having their pictures taken with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, apparently in preparation for an election campaign.

A Progressive Conservative party source said Saturday a number of members of the Commons requested individual photos with Mr. Diefenbaker. The program later was extended to include all government supporters in the House.

The pictures will be useful on campaign posters and literature.

GROUNDING BY FRENCH

TCA's Viscounts Not Affected

MONTREAL (CP) — A Trans-Canada Air Lines spokesman said Saturday night Viscount aircraft used in Canada are of a later model than those grounded Saturday by Air France, Aer

Lingus and British European Airways because of suspected wing trouble.

He said TCA, which uses the later Viscount 754, would not be affected.

The 701's were withdrawn following reports of corrosion and cracks in the wing of a 701 owned by Air France.

The TCA spokesman said different materials were used in the wing spars of TCA's Viscount 754's.

Cigaret Main Lung Cancer Cause, Britons Bluntly Told by Medics

LONDON (Reuters) — A British Medical Association booklet told Britons bluntly Sunday: "Cigaret smoking is a cause of lung cancer. That's that and you can't talk your way out of it."

The booklet, a supplement to the February issue of the magazine Family Doctor, was written by Dr. Harvey Graham, a pseudonym for its editor, Dr. Harvey Flack.

"Cigaret smoking is indeed the principal factor in the causation of lung cancer," the booklet said.

"No other theory fits the facts. No amount of criticism has shaken the basic clinical, chemical and statistical findings."

Pipes and cigars are not nearly so dangerous as cigarettes, Flack said.

He suggested the reason there was still considerably less lung cancer among women than among men was that heavy smoking did not become common among women until after the Second World War. "They just haven't been smoking enough cigarettes for enough years," he said.

Family Gets $10,340 In Sportsman's Death

A Port Alberni widow and her two children will receive $10,340 in compensation for the death of her husband, well-known sportsman William Hall Kendrick, 44, as a result of an auto accident Jan. 11, 1957.

Kendrick was struck by a car driven by Donald Van Pelt, of Clarkston, Wash., an itinerant construction worker.

Mr. Justice A. E. Lord in Supreme Court chambers in Vancouver, authorized Elsie-Winnifred Kendrick to accept $6,895. Her son, Gregory, aged three-and-a-half, will receive $1,645, and her daughter, Karen, two, $1,800. The money represents the limit of Van Pelt's automobile insurance.

The accident occurred at 7 a.m. while Kendrick was walking across a street in Port Alberni to speak to a friend.

He died a day later in West Coast General Hospital. He had been employed by Dominion Construction Ltd., as a steelworker, and was well known in Vancouver Island baseball and softball circles.

Around his neck was what appeared to be the open-topped crown of a straw hat.

On his arrival at the scene Const. Irvine applied artificial respiration. At that time, however, it was thought the boy had been dead some time.

The rope had a simple snare-type noose in the end around Danny's neck. It would have tightened itself when weight was applied.

Danny was of heavy build and weighed about 135 pounds.

A former Wolf Cub, he often played in the bush with friends.

He was in grade seven at Belmont School.

The body was taken to Mr. Call's funeral home.

Deputy coroner Dr. J. H. Moore said he could not decide whether an inquest would be necessary until he learned more details.

NEW STIMULANT SOON TO AID MENTAL CASES

NEW YORK (AP) — A brain stimulant to make normal people sharper and help pull many mentally ill back to reality was reported by a Georgia doctor Saturday.

It may be available by prescription in about three months.

The stimulant reported by Dr. Carl C. Pfeiffer, a 49-year-old researcher from Emory University, Emory, Ga. He presented his findings to a conference of the Brain Research Foundation.

Effective against schizophrenia, the stimulant also may help borderline mental or anxiety cases such as disturbed or delinquent children, he said.

Dr. Pfeiffer believes the stimulant, called dimethylaminoethanol or DMAE, exists naturally in normal brains. But some mentally ill persons may lack enough.
